Presidential Tapes Used In Vesco Trial

NEW YORK (AP) — For the first time in a criminal trial, lawyers for former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and one-time Commerce secretary Maurice H. Stans have had recourse to White House tapes of conversations with the President.

Transcripts from two of the tapes were used in a searching cross-examination Tuesday of ousted White House counsel John W. Dean III at the conspiracy trial of Mitchell and Stans. So was a White House summary of a third tape.

Dean was scheduled to testify again today.

Mitchell and Stans are accused of impeding a massive fraud investigation by the Securities and Exchange Commission against financier Robert L. Vesco, in return for his secret $200,000 cash contribution to President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign.

At one point Tuesday, Dean testified that he concealed from President Nixon a request last year from Mitchell for "action" by Mitchell's successor, Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst, against the federal grand jury that eventually indicted the two defendants.

The testimony was based on a White House tape, as was subsequent testimony relating to Stans.

The government charges that Stans tried to conceal Vesco's contribution by failing to report it under a new law that became effective April 7, 1972, three days before the money changed hands.

Stans then was chairman of the Finance Committee to ReElect the President. It is his claim that he acted in accord with legal advice that Vesco's pledge of the money before the reporting deadline made the concealment legal.

Referring to a White House conversation of Feb. 28, 1973, Dean was asked on cross examination:

"On that date, didn't you inform the President of the United States, 'I think we have a good strong case that the donor of the money, Robert Vesco, had relinquished control of the money and constructive possession of the money was in the hands of the finance committee?'"

"Yes, I did," Dean replied.

But the government later asked: "Wasn't the basis of your statement to the President at that time what Mr. Stans told you?"

"That is correct," replied Dean.

Also at issue in the trial is whether

Stans demanded that the $200,000 be in cash, so it could be traced less easily. One count of perjury against him is based on Stans' testimony before the grand jury that he never made such a demand.

President Nixon's brother, Edward, was described in prosecution testimony as a go-between in trying to pin down whether Stans wanted cash or checks.

Dean was asked under cross examination, "Didn't you inform the President that the long and short of it was that Vesco was after the President's brother to find out from Mr. Stans whether he wanted the contribution in cash or checks and Edward Nixon said Mr. Stans replied: 'I really don't care whether it is in cash or checks?'"

"Yes, sir," replied Dean.

Milk Funds Given To Both Parties

WASHINGTON (AP) — An internal audit shows the Associated Milk Producers Inc. directed corporate money to both sides of the political street during President Nixon's first term.

The audit and a lawyer's report on the co-op's past activities were obtained from court records.

Until President Nixon took office in 1969, the giant dairy cooperative backed mostly Democrats. The audit traces $91,691 in corporate money used to help Hubert H. Humphrey's 1968 campaign against Nixon.

But after Nixon's victory, the co-op leaders decided to make peace with the Republicans. Harold S. Nelson, the co-op's general manager, drew $5,000 in corporate funds to buy tickets to a Republican victory dinner in 1969, the audit shows.

In August, a co-op lawyer delivered $100,000 in cash — now admitted to have been an illegal corporate donation — to the keeper of Nixon's secret political trust, Herbert L. Kalmbach.

But the audit shows the milk producers continued to aid Democrats with corporate money even as they solidified their alliance with the administration.

In 1970, about the time the milk producers were promising to raise $2 million for the President's then-distant re-election campaign, co-op funds reportedly flowed into the senatorial campaigns of Humphrey in Minnesota and of Edmund S. Muskie of Maine.

The co-op's former lobbyist, Bob A. Lilly, is quoted as saying he passed along $34,500 in corporation funds to Humphrey's campaign manager to pay campaign printing bills.

And a former lawyer for the co-op, Stuart H. Russell of Oklahoma City, is quoted as saying he was reimbursed from corporation funds for three contributions to the 1970 Muskie campaign, for a total of $8,400.

Humphrey, asked about both the 1968 and 1970 dairy money, said through a spokesman, "I have no knowledge of these transactions ... An organization as large as AMPI should have had the kind of legal counsel that would have prevented these types of transactions."

A Muskie spokesman said, "It's impossible to check on the veracity of every individual who claims he's giving an individual contribution. The campaign made very careful checks to see that no corporate funds were either solicited or accepted and money which could be identified as corporate funds was returned during the campaign."

The milk producers also used several Democrats in a complex paycheck scheme to cover the $100,000 gift to Nixon's trust. The arrangement generally called for phony legal fees or public relations fees to be paid to persons doing business with the milk producers.

These persons then relayed most of the money to Lilly to repay bank loans he had taken out to cover the Nixon gift and some other political expenses.

Among those listed as taking part in this arrangement were former Democratic party treasurer Richard Maguire, former Humphrey aides Ted Van Dyk and Kirby Jones, former Lyndon B. Johnson White House aide

W. DeVier Pierson, Rep. James R. Jones, D-Okla., and the late Clifton C. Carter, who had been the Democratic National Committee's executive director.

Van Dyk was quoted as saying the milk producers didn't tell him the true purpose of the money that he and his employee Kirby Jones passed along.

Rep. James Jones was quoted as saying he wasn't reimbursed for his $10,000, which he said he gave voluntarily thinking it would be relayed to Democrats. The report said Maguire didn't respond to requests for comment, and that Pierson declined to comment personally.

The audit was conducted by the firm of Haskins & Sells of San Antonio, Texas. It was attached to a report on the co-op's past political dealings by attorney Edward L. Wright, a former American Bar Association president.

Urge U.N. Environmental Planning

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The chairman of the President's Council on Environmental Quality proposed Tuesday night new planning through the United Nations to preserve the environment.

Dr. Russell W. Peterson, a former governor of Delaware, said the United States can lead the effort, but the problem is global, not national.

"The growing interdependence of all of us on planet Earth and the need for us to plan and work together is clear," Peterson said. "We need — perhaps through the United Nations — to formalize this point."

In remarks before a land-use planning conference here, Peterson said growing interdependence between nations is a major factor in determining the quality of life.

"Over the years, United States citizens have developed an independence, a self-sufficiency, a confidence that we could by ourselves accomplish anything," Peterson said.

"Now our nation is undergoing the psychological shock of learning that it is increasingly dependent upon others."

"With an ever-expanding technology and growing economic strength, we developed the belief that we could control and dominate our environment."

"Now, more and more, we realize that we must learn to live in harmony with nature — not as its master, but as one element in a complex and interdependent life-supporting system," he said.

"Miners used to take a bird with them into the mine to test the quality of their environment," he noted. "When the bird expired, they knew it was time to get out."

Cancer-Stricken Youth Receives Kennedy Letter

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Young Stephen Southerland, who lost a leg last week in a fight against cancer, was cheered Tuesday by a "boy-to-boy" letter from Edward Kennedy Jr.

Kennedy is the son of U.S. Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass. Young Kennedy recently lost a leg to cancer.

Contents of the letter were not disclosed. Stephen remained in satisfactory condition today.

He is undergoing chemotherapy and is testing his temporary artificial leg.

His two brothers were also afflicted with cancer. One died.

Government Beef Purchase Plan May Hike Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Department officials admit that government plans to buy $45 million worth of high quality hamburger to help prop up cattle prices also could boost beef prices at supermarkets.

"It will have an upward thrust in cattle prices, but it's impossible to say how much," John Larsen, a USDA livestock economist said. "But it will be a little shot in the arm for producers."

Other department officials said they could not estimate how much the spring beef-buying campaign, announced Tuesday, might add to consumer meat costs if cattle prices rise as planned.

"The amount to be bought is small, very small, and is more of a gesture than anything," one official said, asking not to be identified. "It could make 100,000 cattlemen feel better and 200 million other people mad."

Cattlemen spokesmen said the purchase represents about one day's slaughter in the industry.

The beef buying was disclosed by Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz at a White House meeting.

Later, USDA followed with an official statement saying the plan was designed to remove grain-fattened cattle "from normal marketing channels" and that the meat would be donated to schools.

Beef producers said the federal action will improve their situations somewhat but cautioned that it would not provide a long-range solution.

"I think we will see some price improvement, at least temporarily, because this action will put a little beef out of regular channels. I do feel there are other things the government can do that would be more helpful in the long term," said J. R. Ham of Garden City, Kan.

Claire Robinson, president of the Kansas Livestock Association, said, "This will certainly be a boost in the arm. However, I don't think this is the ultimate solution to get us out of trouble."

Production of total beef last year was 21.1 billion pounds, and the department predicts supplies will increase 3 to 4 per cent in 1974.

Jerry Goodall, deputy director of livestock operations for the department's Agricultural Marketing Service, told a reporter the meat would be bought by June 30 and that it would begin to be shipped to schools in July.

Drug Abuse, Mental Health Before Assembly

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Major bills giving Ohio a tough new drug abuse law and establishing a "bill of rights" for mental patients were before state lawmakers today.

The House scheduled an afternoon vote on the drug bill submitted by Atty. Gen. William J. Brown. Among other things, it would deny probation to persons convicted of the most serious drug offenses, and offer new rehabilitation opportunities for addicts.

At the same time, the Senate scheduled a vote on a bill by Sen. Oliver Ocasek, D-27 Akron, designed to give mental patients periodic examinations and evaluations so as to eliminate the so-called "forgotten patient."

Action on those bills and possible consideration of no fault auto insurance by a Senate committee were expected to push the legislature along in its efforts to call a 30-day recess at the end of next week.

A Senate-House subcommittee worked Tuesday night on final details of a compromise bill to create a state energy board to help deal with the energy problem, while the House

Judiciary Committee put finishing touches on an omnibus bill to create 36 new judgeships in the state and eliminate embattled mayors' courts.

In other areas, a measure to ban sale or manufacture of cheap handguns known as "Saturday night specials" continued to languish in the House Rules Committee where sponsors have tried for the past week to get it out for a floor vote. Each time the latest Tuesday, it has fallen one vote short of seven needed among the 13 committee members.

The Senate refused unanimously, as expected, to go along with House changes in a major bill revising Ohio's campaign financing laws. Leaders named a joint conference committee to try to resolve differences. These include a Senate demand for penalty section revisions that could clear the way for Sen. Donald E. "Buz" Lukens, R-4 Middletown, to seek public office again in 1976.

Lukens was ruled off Ohio ballots for five years in 1973 for failing to file his 1972 campaign financial statement on time.

Senate backers of a move to cut the penalty from five years to one point out that some 600 other candidates at various levels statewide suffered the same harsh penalty.

Sen. Thomas A. Van Meter, R-19 Ashland, said he thinks the ban against running should be replaced with a fine. "The intent is to see that the candidates file. If they know its going to cost, they will file," he said.

Lukens claimed to have mailed his statement listing no receipts and no expenditures, but the Butler County Board of Elections said it was not received in time.

In other business, a "land mark" bill regulating surface mining for all energy except coal—covered in a 1971 law—was approved without dissent at an hour-long Senate floor session.

Sen. Harry Meshel, D-33 Youngstown, said the bill represents 14 months of negotiations among lawmakers, the Department of Natural Resources, and industry representatives.

The bill provides for 10-year permits and requires approval of reclamation plans in advance for miners for sand, gravel, clay, shale, gypsum, halite, limestone, dolomite, sandstone, and other minerals.

Lukens won 29-2 approval of a floor amendment that allows strip miners for coal, as well as other minerals, to appeal from orders of the Reclamation Board of Review either in the county of operation or in the Franklin County Common Pleas Court.

The 1971 law stipulates that coal operator may appeal only in Franklin County. Lukens said the new law giving surface miners a choice of where to appeal, without his amendment, "would discriminate against strip miners."

The bill now goes to the House, along with two others approved by the Senate during an hour-long floor session. The others permit public employees to pay debts through so-called debt pooling companies and lets superintendents and other school board employees receive compensation for attending professional meetings without advance approval of the boards.

One new bill was introduced in the Senate. It requires the watercraft division to post and maintain markers warning canoeists and others of dams, rapids, and other stream hazards.

As its floor session, the House approved and sent to the Senate a bill that would permit municipal corporations to assess property owners for removal of litter after a 10-day notice.

The bill was amended on the floor to extend the notice from five to 10 days and to make it permissive rather than mandatory.

As written, the bill would have required municipalities to give notice to a property owner with litter that he had five days to clean it up before the community did it and billed him.

The House passed 91-2 a bill increasing from five to 10 years the limit for which a tax levy for support of a community mental health and retardation service program could be approved. It now goes to the Senate.

The House passed 92-1 and sent to Gov. John J. Gilligan for signing a Senate bill that would reduce from six to five the number of paid holidays for a non-teaching school employee hired on a nine or 10 months basis.

A bill was introduced in the House by Rep. James Celebrezze, D-4 Cleveland, to create a crimes compensation board to study claims from the victims of a crime.

Markets

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices edged lower today as the market continued the aimless wandering it began last week.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off .54 at 883.14, and losers outpaced gainers by close to 3-to-2 in light trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said the market appeared unable to find any cause for either enthusiasm or anxiety. Many investors seemed simply to be waiting to see whether interest rates would continue their recent upswing, or if the down-trend in money rates earlier in the year would reassert itself.

Pittston Co., up 1 1/4 at 33 3/4, was the Big Board volume leader. Analysts said the company appeared to be attracting buyers because of its coal interests.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index was up .04 at 98.30.

The NYSE's noon composite index of all its listed common stocks was down .17 at 52.13.

Coaching Contracts Topic For LE Board

In the third meeting this month of the Logan Elm Board of Education, plans for filling supplemental coaching contracts were made. The board offered the varsity basketball coaching position to former reserve coach Asa Bradbury.

In other action concerning the supplemental contracts, the board declared the varsity football head coach and assistant coaching positions open. Superintendent John Henn was authorized to accept applications for the positions immediately.

Employment was offered to William Hough as a substitute teacher to replace Mrs. Gordon, a science teacher at McDowell Exchange School. Mrs. Gordon resigned her position to join her husband who is in the armed forces.

The board approved an advance draw of $50,000 to meet the February payroll.

Members of the board concurred with county prosecuting attorney Richard L. Gerhardt that religion classes may not be taught during school hours nor in school buildings. Consequently, a request to teach Bible classes at Washington Elementary School was denied.

A resolution was passed to contact all members of the House Commerce and Labor Committee to urge a quick hearing and passage of Senate Bill 479.

Ill-Fated Jet Didn't Have Modified Door

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate subcommittee investigating the world's worst airline crash is turning to the question of how the DC10 jumbo jet left the factory without a key modification to a cargo door.

The panel heard testimony Tuesday that an investigation of the crash, which killed 346 people, showed that the aircraft apparently lacked a small plate on the door-latching system that had been recommended by federal officials in mid-1972 after a DC10 was involved in a near accident.

The crash of the Turkish airline jumbo jet near Paris earlier this month came after the rear cargo door apparently blew off, causing explosive depressurization of the craft, buckling the floor of the cabin and damaging controls to the rudder, federal safety officials testified before the panel.

Officials of the National Transportation Safety Board testified that its probe of the crash showed that a man unable to read cautionary instructions was responsible for closing the cargo door that blew off in flight.

Former Federal Aviation Administrator John Shaffer said the door latch was the apparent cause of the crash.

Shaffer heatedly challenged testimony that he in effect vetoed a recommendation calling for a mandatory order directing corrections in the latching system.

The official, Arvin Basnight, testified that he proposed a mandatory order only to find his recommendation rebuffed. The recommendation was made after a similar incident involving a DC10 occurred at Detroit in mid-1972, causing a forced landing.

Shaffer told reporters he ordered a service bulletin sent to all airlines telling them how to make necessary design changes. Although this order is voluntary, Shaffer said that under the circumstances it was just as strong as an air worthiness directive, which would have grounded all DC10s until the recommended changes were made.

The bill if passed would eliminate unemployment compensation for cooks, bus drivers and other uncertified school employees during summer months when school is not in session.

Board approval was given to order custodial supplies along with approval to advertise for five new replacement buses. The approval for order is coupled with the understanding that the board reserved the right to reject all or any bids prior to actual issuing of the purchase order.

A length discussion was held concerning plans to follow to inform citizens of the urgent need for the operating levy which will be submitted to voters on the May primary ballot.

Citizens will be asked to help on various committees and to become involved so they may become fully aware of the needs of the school district. It was brought out that new residents in the district must register to be eligible to vote by April 8. Registrations are accepted until that deadline at the board of elections.

Since the next board meeting is scheduled for April 1, the proposed annexation and several other important items concerning the Logan Elm District were delayed until that time. Board members present were Don Bower, Virginia Wood, Roger Hobbie, Frank Seimer and Robert Bowers.

Senator's Wife Visits Circleville

Mrs. Shirley Metzenbaum, wife of Ohio U. S. Senator Howard M. Metzenbaum, was the guest speaker Tuesday, at a coffee and dessert rally, at Man-Sell's Restaurant.

Speaking to approximately 50 Pickaway and Ross Countians, Mrs. Metzenbaum stated, "Howard has always been standing up and fighting for the consumer."

Validating that statement, the wife, of the appointed Senator, spoke of her husband's outspoken probing of oil company records in the U.S. Senate, as well as his innovative consumer legislation during his eight years in the Ohio General Assembly.

"His vast business experience has enabled him to understand the financial reports of the oil companies," she explained. "He can tell when they're hiding something."

Accompanying Mrs. Metzenbaum at the gathering sponsored by Pickaway County Citizens for Senator Metzenbaum Committee, was Dr. Lloyd W. Wood Democratic candidate for U. S. Representative.

A Page Of Opinion

Absenteeism High

Complaints are heard now and then of working conditions such as monotonous production lines, jobs which present little challenge and so forth. Little is heard from the other side of the coin. If employers felt free to honestly assess their employees, what might they say?

Undoubtedly the remarks would vary from company to company and between industries. But what some of the bosses might say is that too many employees goof off. And a study by the American Society for Personnel Administration might bear them out.

After surveying 931 firms in varied businesses, industries and research organizations throughout the United States, the study found absenteeism averaged nine days a year per employee. Banks ranked lowest with an average of 6.7 days absenteeism per employee, with research and development firms, retail establishments and hospitals at the top of the list, averaging almost 10 days annually.

Illness and personal problems were the primary reasons for the absences, which on the average cost the employers $146 annually for each employee on the payroll. While

"deterioration of the work ethic" was noted, employers also were found negligent in supervision and establishing standards of attendance.

Put Fun In Fun City

ON THE LINE
By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK — New York's doughty little mayor, Abe Beame, announced the other day that he has a revolutionary plan to make our town habitable after sunset. It is his walk-talk project. As Abe explained it to an Overseas Press Club luncheon honoring him on his 68th birthday, the main trouble with Fun City is that not many of its residents think it's much fun to get to know one another.

Some New Yorkers go through a lifetime and never say hello to the people in the next apartment, he said in effect, and that's true. During the big power failure of some years back there was a frightening pounding on our apartment door. We took our candle and walked to the door, opened it and found — in the otherwise Stygian black hall — a hysterical lady we had never before seen.

We took her in, naturally, and learned that we had been living together for three years separated by a wall so thin that we could hear her brushing her hair. But our paths had never crossed, though our front doors were separated by hardly 12 inches.

What had happened, it developed, was that she had taken a short nap while awaiting the arrival home of her husband, and during the nap all the lights of New York and the Northeast section of the U.S. and parts of Canada went blawie. Awakening, she thought she had gone blind, screamed for her husband (who was caught in a stranded elevator high above blacked-out Wall Street), panicked, bowed over furniture, opened her door and began pound on ours.

We poured a few drinks for the trembling lady, gave her a candle, and sent her home — blind. We never saw her again.

That's the New York our mayor is determined to change. Abe said:

"When the weather clears, I'm going to select a neighborhood where 50 or 60 families live behind their bolted doors and urge them to come outside to walk and talk. Get to know each other. Be neighbors, in the old familiar sense. Maybe hardly five or six families will show up the first night. But I think that their experience will prompt ten or 12 families to walk and talk the next night, and so on and on until we have the whole neighborhood participating. Then we'll try the same thing in another part of town."

Who knows, some day Fun City may actually be fun.

Speaking of mayors, Mayor Teddy Kolek of Jerusalem, who was born in Vienna, paid a courtesy call on his old friend, Mayor Beame of New York, who was born in London.

Teddy, equally convivial, was surprised by the size and diligence of the security around Abe. By contrast, Teddy doesn't have a single cop or security guard at his office in Jerusalem, where peace has not yet broken out. He was even more surprised at the guard around President Nixon.

"In Jerusalem, we're about equally divided, Jews and Arabs," he says. "The old Jews who came there a long time ago are having their troubles with the new Jews from Africa and America. Both are having their troubles with the Arabs. But Jerusalem is everybody's capital. During the October War we must have had a hundred thousand visitors from different parts of the Arab world — from Kuwait, Algeria, Egypt and so forth. We couldn't have turned down more than 40 or 50 of them, for security reasons. Here we were at war, and Jerusalem was crowded with visitors and pilgrims. You could walk in peace and safety any place in the city, at any time of night, and be safe."

Presidents have been pooh-poohing popularity polls ever since FDR read in the Literary Digest that he was going to lose to Alf M. Landon. That is, they downgraded the importance of polls that indicate that they have lost favor among the rank and file of the voters.

But don't let them kid you; they read every word of Gallup, Harris and the others who make ominous mountains out of the likes and dislikes of a microscopic percentage of the voting multitudes. President Johnson used to bring out stacks of charts he had had prepared to show that he rated better than President Eisenhower once had. Later, when the Vietnam War turned his graphs into ski slides, LBJ would take comfort in showing visitors just how far he still remained ahead of President Truman's rating during the worst of the war in Korea.

Ol' Harry sank to a 23 before he hit absolute bottom. There's every reason to believe that President Nixon, who now stands at 26, must feel bolstered. After all, Ol' Harry weathered his crisis, and by now it is more or less of a cliché that he was one of the five or six greatest Presidents we ever had.

Business World

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The Tax Foundation points out that the average American spends 2 hours and 37 minutes of his work day to pay federal state and local taxes. That's more than 13 hours a week, or about four months a year.

Relentless in its pursuit of spenders, it notes further that the proposed federal budget for the coming year will average $4,013 for each of the nation's 71 million households, up $1,214 in just four years.

There is no limit to statistics such as these, as you might guess. But what often is lacking is an interpretation, especially in regard to where the money is going, and why.

One man with strong opinions is Prof. Roland N. McKean of the University of Virginia, an economist, author of various books, and contributor to United States government committees and panels.

Writing in the foundation's "Tax Review," he suggests that the "products" of government are inferior, wasteful dangerous and against the public good.

McKean says they include tariffs, price-support programs, regulatory programs, housing, welfare and defense.

"When I say that the consumer continues to face shoddy products, hazardous products, and misleading advertising, I think mainly of the public goods that he buys," McKean states.

He insists they should be examined in the same manner as private sector goods — from the standpoint of quality, safety, price, advertising and misleading information.

"As a consumer I do indeed feel put upon regarding the quality of my goods — but it's not so much because my hot dogs are 30 per cent chicken and bread crumbs; it's much more because my public goods often seem to be 70 per cent baloney," he said.

The public accounting firm of Coopers & Lybrand believes tax bills might be lower if waste was eliminated or reduced at the local levels. After auditing and further studying five middle-size cities, the company found:

—Antiquated budget systems.

—Failures in utilizing possible federal grants.

—Underutilization of electronic computers.

—Lack of modern management techniques for planning, controlling and evaluating operations.

Said Philip L. Defliese, the firm's managing partner:

"Cities are organized to meet the public's needs, while businesses are established primarily to turn a profit."

"But if cities would adopt more business practices they could deliver more public service at no more cost to the taxpayers."

California Law Voided

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court held today that states may not bar candidates from the ballot solely because they cannot afford a filing fee.

The decision, invalidating California's current filing fee requirement, was one of three issued today dealing with state election laws.

Writing for the majority in the California fee case, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger said California had chosen "to achieve the important and legitimate interest of maintaining the integrity of elections by means which operate to exclude some potentially serious candidates from the ballot without providing them with any alternative means of coming before the voters."

"Selection of candidates solely on the basis of ability to pay a fixed fee without providing any alternative means is not reasonably necessary to the accomplishment of the state's legitimate election interests," Burger said.

"Accordingly, we hold that in the absence of reasonable alternative means of ballot access, a state may not, consistent with constitutional standards, require from an indigent candidate filing fees he cannot pay," Burger wrote.

School Levy Defeated

UPPER SANDUSKY, Ohio (AP) — A proposed 3.7-mill levy to finance the proposed Crawford-Upper Sandusky joint vocational school was defeated by voters Tuesday. The vote was 819 for and 1,821 against.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I have been taking digitalis for a mild heart condition for a long time. I am curious about how the drug works. The only explanation I can find is too complicated for me.

Mr. T.W.K., Wash., D.C.

Dear Mr. K.:

Digitalis is a remarkable heart stimulant that first was extracted from the dried leaves of a plant, Digitalis Purpurea, known as "foxglove." Its use is one of the best examples of how plants have been found, by trial and error, to be effective in the treatment of illnesses.

Dr. William Withering, of Scotland, first used foxglove to treat a patient with dropsy. This abnormal collection of fluid in the body soon responded, and foxglove (digitalis) attained prominence.

Since then it has been learned that digitalis strengthens the heart muscle and helps it to pump more blood more efficiently throughout the body.

In addition to increasing the work capacity of the heart, it also acts in a very complicated way on the central nervous system.

It is indeed one of the most valuable drugs used by doctors.

I have been trying to find a definition for ainhum. I have even looked in medical dictionaries.

Miss E.R., S.C.

Dear Miss R.:

Your question intrigued me. I hunted, and finally found a description of this condition which I had, by the way, never heard of.

Dr. John P. Curran, of Jersey City, N.J., reported that a strand of wet hair from bath water can, when it dries, cut deeply into the skin of one of the toes.

Dr. Curran says he has seen a number of cases in which the toe is "strangled" by the dried strand of hair.

This is "ainhum." You and I have both learned something.

Has there been any news about the results of acupuncture for nerve deafness?

Mrs. P.A.K., Ohio

Dear Mrs. K.:

The studies are in progress by a number of reliable sources. No encouraging reports are yet available.

Many people do themselves a great injustice by prematurely becoming involved with the acupuncture technique for deafness, which is still speculative.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

My name was Ashville. I was built in the bed of the great Teays River. I was a beautiful little village; quite and serene, a farm community.

You could sit out on your porch in the Spring and hear the robins busily gathering twigs and string for their nests. You could smell the odor of freshly plowed backyard gardens. See the children at play in neighboring yards, enjoying the first warm days with glee and exuberance.

In the Summer you could sit in the yard in the cool of the evening and converse with your neighbor next door about the heat and still hear the raincrow calling for much needed rain. You could hear the laughter of other neighbors enjoying a backyard barbecue or a swim in their back-yard pool.

In the fall as you walked along the street kicking at the beautiful fallen leaves you could find out the news of the day; the happenings of the village squire; the sadness of the death of a neighbor; the hardships of this family or the good fortune of another. Hear about the delight of a new born; see the proud look in the eye of the owner of a new car; hear the happiness in the voice of Grandma Jones as she tells of her grandchildren coming to visit.

In the winter look out on the freshly fallen snow and see the tracks made by sleds of the happy children headed for Pontius Hill—and know they were going to have great fun.

Beautiful to read all this about a small village. Almost wished you lived here don't you? In ten years you would never believe the changes.

Most of the people are the same. Older and wiser perhaps. The robins still build their nests in the spring by the grace of God.

A few people still put out gardens. You can sit in the backyard in the summer if your lungs are in good shape. The roads are so bad that you can't see your next door neighbor for the dust. You can almost hear the raincrow call above the barking of dogs allowed to run loose and dig up your garden and dirty up your yard.

You can almost hear your next door neighbor laugh above the hot-rodgers over on the next street if you have good ears.

The neighbors don't swim too much in their pools because they get too dirty from the dust of the street. The water cost so much you can only afford to fill it once a year.

The fall is pretty nice; the leaves still drop from the trees, thanks to God. The village squire are something to be desired. They let big builders come in. They give them so many variances that we don't need a zoning board—just Council to hurry up and make a new ordinance and tear up the old one to suit the needs of the big guys. They build the housing projects but no road just dust holes. Even Old Uncle Sam won't let the mail be delivered to the homes because of the streets.

The neighbors still have to contend with birth and death. That's God's Plan. The kids still go to Pontius Hill - too dangerous anywhere else. Ashville died ten years ago, a new mysterious village came into being brought on by change and greed. Thank God for air-conditioning. You can close your doors and windows on a nice little village now dead do to misdeeds done by the people that run me. It's not run for the people that have been here for years but for the new comers to make money and destroy. My services will be held as soon as the dust clears enough for the Council to dig my grave.

Computer Dating Warning Issued

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State Commerce Director Dennis Shaul warned Ohioans today to use caution in dealing with computer dating services.

He said an "astounding" number of complaints had been received from people victimized by such services. He said most complaints allege that promises made by the firms are worthless and the quality and quantity of the referrals are misrepresented.

Shaul suggested that people seeking companionship consider alternatives to dating services such as volunteer organizations and church groups.

Udall Attacks Firestone Choice

WASHINGTON (AP) — The qualifications of Leonard K. Firestone to be ambassador to Belgium were questioned Tuesday by Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz.

Udall said Firestone, a director of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., got the nomination "for one reason and one reason only—because he and his family gave a lot of money to the President's campaign."

Udall suggested the President withdraw the nomination. But if the nomination stands, he said, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee should carefully study Firestone's qualifications for the job.

News Of Interest To Women

The Circleville Herald, Wednesday March 27, 1974

MRS. MICHAEL WEILBACHER

Miss Angelia Justice, Michael Weilbacher Wed

Miss Angelia Justice and Mr. Michael Weilbacher were united in marriage 1:30 p.m., March 23, at Trinity Lutheran Church in Circleville. The Rev. Carl Zehner officiated the double ring ceremony before the altar decorated with vases of white gladioli and yellow and white daisies.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. Richard Justice, Youngstown, formerly of Circleville and Mrs. Doris Rosenthal, Des Plaines, Ill.

A program of music preceded the ceremony provided by Mrs. Thomas Downing, organist and Mr. Larry Pierce and Miss Cindy Weilbacher, soloists.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. For her wedding she wore a floor length gown of white bridal satin in an original design made by her step-mother, Mrs. Richard (Patti) Justice. Embroidered lace enhanced the overlay of white organza. The fitted bodice featured a square neckline and long full sleeves banded with lace. The softly pleated satin skirt flowed gracefully to a chapel train and matching lace edged the skirt down the open front and formed a double band from the waist to the end of the train. She stated the discussion dealt with the idea of getting more people to be aware of the litter in our parks and along roadsides and refrain from despoiling the beauty of our country areas. It was hoped also that parents would give more concern about the safety of their children riding bicycles and motorcycles.

Mrs. Corilla Pontious thanked the club for the gift she received while ill. She also won the chance gift.

During the program hour Mrs. Doris Edwards gave a talk on new varieties of flowers being introduced by seed companies. Several new roses known as Flora Tea roses were named, a new dianthus "Magic Charm," celosia called "Red Fox" that dries easily, a marigold "Show Boat" and a zinnia "Peter Pan."

'Grass' Blows In Sudden Wind

WASHINGTON COURT HOUSE, Ohio (AP) — A brisk March wind literally blew the cover off an Akron youth who is spending 10 days in jail for possession of marijuana.

The young hitchhiker was stopped Sunday for questioning by Fayette County Deputy David Krupla when the wind blew his hat away.

It exposed about a third of a small bag-full of the illegal substance, authorities said, on top of 18-year-old Mark E. Anderson's head.

School Enrollment Decline Reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — Elementary school enrollment declined 2.2 per cent in the current school year and will continue dropping for the remainder of the 1970s because American women have been having fewer children, the Census Bureau says.

An education official says the drop in elementary school enrollment — the third consecutive yearly decrease — may not result in lower education costs, but may bring about higher-quality education.

"At the same time enrollment is going down, pressure for higher teachers' salaries is going up," said Dr. William Tharis, executive director of the National Association of Elementary School Principals.

Agent Sees No Big Return To Child Stars

LOS ANGELES (AP) — With two youngsters nominated for Academy awards — Linda Blair and Tatum O'Neal as supporting actresses — some people are wondering if the era of the child star will return.

It won't happen, says one expert in the field of child actors. She is Pat Domigan, whose practiced eye has spotted dozens of youngsters for movies, television series and commercials.

"I don't think there will be any trend toward child stars such as we had in the 1930s," Mrs. Domigan remarked. "There simply aren't enough roles for young players. The studios aren't making the kinds of pictures that starred Shirley Temple, Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland."

But there is still work to be found for talented, attractive children, and Mrs. Domigan does it every day. An associate of the Jack Wormser talent agency, she specializes in young talent, with good results.

Among her finds: Danny Bonaduce and Brian Forster on "The Partridge Family"; Kami Cotler of "The Waltons"; Clint Howard and Mitch Brown in the new "Cowboys" TV series; Kirby Furlong, who plays nephew Patrick in "Mame"; Michael Hughes of Danny Thomas' "Make Room For Granddaddy"; Maurice McCormick of "The Brady Bunch"; Erin Murphy, the Tabetha of "Bewitched."

She is an anomaly in what she admits is the "dog-eat-dog" business of selling show business talent. A soft-spoken, middle-age, church-going lady, she has succeeded because of her persistence and sharp eye for promising youngsters.

Married to a Los Angeles water department employee, Mrs. Domigan worked as a professional shopper until her son caused her to enter the agency business. He had appeared in church plays and began getting small roles in films and television under the name Craig Marshall.

By accompanying her son on job interviews, Mrs. Domigan began learning the talent business, and she entered it in a modest way. She specialized in children, partly to avoid the heartache of having others depend on her for a living — "children don't have to get jobs to survive; adult actors do."

Her method of finding talent is unusual: "I've discovered the best prospects in children's stores and on the street. I learned to be analytical as a professional shopper, and I can generally spot a promising child quickly."

"When I see someone I like, I say, 'Would you like to be on television?' If they are interested, I tell them to check with the Screen Actors Guild to certify our agency and then get in touch with me. It's necessary for them to know that we are legitimate, because there are so many phonies in this field."

Much has been written about how child actors have turned into unhappy adults. Mrs. Domigan discounts this.

"It may have been true in the old days, when Judy Garland was given uppers and downers," she remarked. "But now children work under rigid laws. Judy Garland had an ambitious mother, and that was the source of many of her troubles. On the other hand, Shirley Temple had intelligent parents, and she turned out all right."

Songstress Tanya Tucker Climbs

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Age has ended many a child star's career, but Tanya Tucker, the latest fair-haired child of country music, is unconcerned.

"Starting young can be good or bad. Like, sometimes I wonder what Donnie Osmond will be doing when he's 30. But I don't let fears like that bother me," the curly-haired blond remarked.

"I don't really have a child's voice so I don't have to worry about what I'll sound like later on."

"I know my voice will be different, but it's already changed. It did that when I had my tonsils out."

No tonsils helped her latest single "Will You Lay With Me (In a Field of Stone)" make the No. 2 spot last week in the charts. Her album, in its second week in the charts, is in the top 30.

"People like to be surprised. And they are surprised when they hear a 15-year-old singing a song like 'Will You Lay With Me.'" And sometimes they're surprised just by my age. They don't all know I'm as young as I am."

Her roots are in country music, but her release of "Delta Dawn" in 1972 and now, "Will You Lay With Me," cross over, as the term goes, into rock airplay.

"My album has a little of everything: ballads, rock and country. I don't want to put myself into a

State Employee, Auto Use Ripped

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Michael J. Maloney, R-7 Cincinnati, today asked State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson to look into the use of state employees and state cars on alleged political trips by Gov. John J. Gilligan.

Maloney said 16 state employees under the supervision of Rupert L. Ruppert are acting as "advance men" for the governor, traveling the state making arrangements for the governor's visits.

He said they are using state-owned cars while on partisan political trips and have annual salaries totaling $216,897.

"In view of the fact the governor's office has not taken action to clear up these representations, and in view of the public money involved, I respectfully request that your office initiate the appropriate audit inquiry so that the facts will be determined," Maloney said in a letter to Ferguson.

Fellow Cancer Sufferer Boosts Young Boy's Spirits

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—Stephen Southerland continues to recuperate from cancer surgery while another 13-year-old who's traveled his road tells him to "trust God."

"I learned how important it is to trust God and live a day at a time," Kevin Steen of Carefree, Ariz., told Steve in two letters he sent to Children's Hospital here.

Stephen had his left leg amputated three inches below the hip last week due to bone cancer. Doctors think they stopped the disease.

The Miami, Fla. 8th-grader is the third of three sons to have a rare form of cancer.

Jeffrey Southerland died at age four of lymphatic cancer. Michael, nine, has been free of symptoms of a rare malignancy of the spinal nerve lining for the past two years.

Kevin, who sent Steve the letters, was told in 1970 that he would die within six weeks to three months of a rare lymphatic cancer.

"For reasons known only to God he came out of it," said his father, Orion, in a telephone interview. Kevin's been in remission ever since.

Steen said his son told Stephen "think of all the things you'll do when you come home." Steen said he himself told Stephen's father Raymond "we were praying for him."

In addition to chemotherapy injections, Stephen is put on a tilt board several times a day for physical therapy. The degree to which the board is tilted increases the amount of weight placed on a temporary artificial leg Stephen received during surgery.

"They've been moving me around a lot," the hospital quoted Stephen as saying Monday. "Even though I don't always appreciate what they're doing to me I know it's for the best."

Steen said his son Kevin—who was present at the splashdown of Apollo 17 because of his desire to become an astronaut—writes to cancer victims throughout the world.

Heavy Surf Subsidies

HONOLULU (AP) — Heavy surf which battered the Hawaiian Islands during the weekend subsided Monday, and high surf warnings were canceled. Five persons drowned, and damages are estimated at more than $250,000 as a result of waves which reached up to 35 feet.

All five victims were drowned along Oahu's North Shore. Four women were washed off Sunset Beach and swept out to sea Saturday afternoon. Dead are Judy Ann Moore, 23, of Eugene, Ore.; and Cynthia Kollars, 19; Nancy Hamnans, 26; and Garlene Galloway, 30, all of Honolulu.

William Simpson, 50, of Honolulu, drowned when his 26-foot sailboat capsized while entering the Haleiwa Marina Sunday afternoon. Two companions were rescued.

The most serious property damage occurred at the tiny fishing village of Milolii at the southern tip of Hawaii Island. The village's only store, a home, a park pavilion and part of the main road were destroyed.

Congress Gives Quick Nod To Bill For POW Survivors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has speedily voted and sent for President Nixon's approval a new military benefit intended as a mark of respect to servicemen who died while being held prisoner by the Viet Cong or North Vietnamese.

Under legislation passed Monday by the House, the Pentagon has been authorized to provide families of the POWs with round-trip transportation to funerals for the men, as well as living expenses and other allowances.

Sen. Robert J. Dole, R-Kan., introduced the bill Friday afternoon after reading a newspaper article that morning about the California widow of a Navy pilot, Capt. John Abbott, who had died in captivity.

In the newspaper story, Mrs. Cecile Abbott said she would have to pay for herself and her 12-year-old son to travel to the burial of her husband, whose body was released by the North Vietnamese two weeks ago.

Fifteen other bills were introduced in the Senate Friday and were immediately referred to committee for hearings and action — the normal procedure. Later, the chamber took up the bill Dole and four cosponsors had proposed. It passed on a voice vote.

When the House convened Monday, it received and passed the measure without objection or discussion. Meanwhile, the Pentagon announced it would implement the measure as soon as possible.

In Sacramento, Mrs. Abbott said: "I am just overwhelmed. I am completely amazed at the speed of this legislation...."

"Now I really believe all this about the power of the press," she added. Until now, the Pentagon had no authority for such travel and funeral-connected expenses for any dead serviceman's family.

Cincinnati Raid Yields Heroin

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A raid at a downtown Cincinnati hotel Tuesday yielded one of southern Ohio's largest heroin hauls, according to authorities.

Federal authorities said 10 ounces of heroin worth $300,000 on the street was confiscated. An Ohio man and a California woman were arrested, according to Norbert A. Nadel, first assistant attorney in Cincinnati.

The two were identified as Charles Goff, 36, of Dayton, and Patricia Lynn Jackson, 27, Vallejo, Calif. The pair was charged with possession with intent to distribute heroin, Nadel said.

Westfall NHS Taps 19 New Members

By BECKI EASTERDAY
Nineteen candidates were tapped into the Westfall Chapter of the National Honor Society March 7.

The program began with a piano prelude by Cathy Cochran. Student body president Steve Cochran performed two solos, "Born Free", and "The Impossible Dream" during the program.

Present members conducted the service. Susan Hillman gave the invocation and Rick Metzger led the audience in the Pledge of Allegiance. Dave Shannon read the history of the Society.

Rae Fenstermaker represented the Spirit of the Torch and requirement speeches for membership were recited by Dianna Strittmatter, character; Darlene Barney, scholarship; Debbie Hulse, leadership; and Carol Clem, service.

Becki Easterday told the method of selecting new members. Not more than 10 per cent of the junior class and 15 per cent of the senior class may be nominated for this high honor of achievement.

All nominees must have a grade average of 3.25 or higher and pledge to uphold the high standards set by the National Honor Society.

The old members each lit a candle from the torch and went into the student body to perform the tapping ceremony.

New members are: juniors: Robert Stone, Tom Schooley, Doug Williams, Bunny Stevens, Jane Schein, Teresa Conley, Mary Musselman, Terry Monett, Lynn Stillings, Mary Karn, Karen Marshall, and Cathy Welsh.

Seniors are Bill Jacobs, Joe Angles, Tim Brigner, Mickey Horn, Loretta Massie, Jerri Furniss, Jacob Carle.

Each initiate was then escorted to a seat on the stage and Rick Metzger repeated the National Honor Society Pledge which the new members recited in unison. Susan Hillman concluded the program with the benediction.

Nine Receive Superior Ratings At Science Fair

By LYNN HUSTON
Westfall did well at the District Science Fair March 9 in Columbus. Nine of twenty-eight projects entered received a superior rating. These students are: Chuck Bower, Emily Caldwell, Mary Jo Carle, Mickey Horn, April Neal, Phil Scott, Bunny Stevens, Vickie Wilkey and Judy Welford.

Eight projects were given excellent ratings, ten receiving a rating of good and one satisfactory.

Several students were not judged individually due to their conflicting participation in the solo and ensemble contest. Therefore, their projects were judged on appearance alone and did not receive high ratings.

The rotating trophy for most superiors entered from one school went to Westerville High School. Westfall students will be working hard to regain the coveted trophy next year.

Juniors To Present Class Play March 29

By VANESSA LONG
The WHS Junior Class Play this year is "Finders Creepers" written by Donald Payton to be performed with special permission of the Heuar Publishing Company, Cedar Rapids, Iowa. It will be shown 7:30 p.m. March 29, in the Westfall High School Auditorium.

The play is a well-paced mystery comedy that stars Rex Hix as Hercules Nelson and Doug Garrison as Wilbur Maxwell. Hercules and his friend Wilbur plan to spend a weekend with Herc's aunt and uncle. They arrive only to find that Uncle Bob has taken a new job and to their horror they find out he's a mortician.

To top that, he has a "Guest" named Jason Quigley who "ran out of gas." His funeral is to be Monday. The boys decided to go home pronto until Wilbur meets Herc's cousin Celeste and boom — he decides to stay. Well, things start happening then! First, Mr. Quigley,

"the guest" walks around, reads the paper, and climbs into Hercules' bed. His gallivanting naturally terrifies the boys.

But they haven't seen anything yet. Mr. Quigley isn't really dead. Someone tried to do away with him while he was asleep, so he evolved a plan: He'd make his family think he was dead, then show up at his own funeral and trap the guilty. Herc is still planning to leave until he sees Nina, the "deceased" granddaughter, and then he decides to stay. His plan would have succeeded if Wilbur and Hercules decided to solve the case and soon matters go from bad to worse!

Hercules tips off Nina that her grandpop is alive, she tips off the family and everything's messed. Uncle Bob is implicated and ends up in jail. The boys confront the culprit and end the play with one of the wildest finishes ever.

So if you like comedies, be sure and see this one! It's a dilly! Remember 7:30 p.m. Friday. See you there!

Mr. Greer — "Probably the tour was aimed at specific research interests rather than general high school students; I would like to have selected the areas of visitation."

T. Monett — "It was fun. But we didn't see everything and I would have liked to have seen more."

H. Canter — "It was O.K. but I was disappointed on what they showed us."

DEAR MR. TRUE (NOT FINE) BLOOD: The scholar Arthur Prince who sent me your brilliant quotation did not find it very amusing, and I don't blame him. He had your name right, and so did I. How your blood became "fine" from "true" baffles me. The transformation no doubt occurred in the composing room causing my own blood (which is "A positive") to boil briefly when I saw the error. My apologies to both you and Arthur Prince.

DEAR ABBY: Thanks to you, we have made provisions for leaving our eyes, kidneys, and pituitary glands. But what can be done about recovering the thousands of dollars in gold invested in crowns, bridges, inlays, etc.? At today's gold prices, it seems too wasteful to be buried or cremated with all that gold in our mouths.

LOADED IN THOUSAND OAKS
DEAR LOADED: Eyes, kidneys and pituitary glands are infinite value to the recipients, but few people have sufficient gold in their mouths to justify leaving it to their heirs.

DEAR ABBY: Concerning your letter from the 16-year-old girl who made a pledge to save herself for marriage. You replied, "Lovely."

I'm a 16-year-old girl, too, and I'd like to know what is so lovely about saving yourself for marriage. A guy is expected to sow a few wild oats and have some experience before marriage. This is somewhat of an accepted thing in society, but what about the girl he gets this experience from? She is considered a "loose" girl, looked down upon. What about the nice girls?

Whether adults like to admit it or not, with puberty comes also a developing sex drive in girls, too. This is a normal biological function. Why must we suffer the frustration of restraint for society's sake? Remember, though, I'm talking purely sex and not condoning illegitimate pregnancies for there are many ways of prevention. I also am not condoning the practice of sex with just anyone either. I'm talking about the enjoyment of a full, satisfactory relationship between a girl and a guy who love each other.

Finally, there would probably be far fewer frustrations on the parts of the girl and the guy if the girl didn't hold herself to a pledge she made long before she really knew the score.

Thank you for your time.
A NORMAL GIRL
Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply write to ABBY: Box 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio capital city newsmen held their annual roast Tuesday night. The main course was politicians.

It was the Ohio Press Club's 1974 Gridiron Show, where the state's top politicians pay money to hear and see themselves insulted.

The 1974 show followed the theme, "Rivals and Revivals, or, Praise the Lord and Pass the Politicians." And the old revival preacher who ran the annual satire did so on a bi-partisan basis, nailing Democrats and Republicans, from the President down.

"Brothers and sisters, I am no different than you," the preacher intoned. "I once wandered aimlessly, my campaign filled with sin."

"I could launder my campaign expenses, but I couldn't cleanse my soul...Come on brothers and sisters, let me hear you testify."

Who should step forward but an actor playing Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe, proclaiming: "I'm a newborn politician."

"How are you reborn, Brother Saxbe?" the preacher asked.

"Before I saw the light I was just a senator from Ohio," Saxbe testified. "I didn't see all the good things our President was doing. I was cursed by Devil Politics. And then I saw the light."

Then the "old" Saxbe appeared to contrast with the new Saxbe.

"It's like the guy playing piano downstairs in the house of ill repute who says he doesn't know what's going on upstairs," said the "old" Saxbe.

"I think I have a pretty good feel for those things and I believe him," the "new" Saxbe said.

To the tune of "Won't you come home Bill Bailey," the newsmen responded in chorus:

"Won't you revert Bill Saxbe; To your old ways?; You used to give them hell."

"You've changed the tune you're singing; You've lost your spunk; You're ringing Nixon's bell."

"But now you've gone tame; On laying the blame; Bill Saxbe why aren't you the same?"

On the Democratic side, Gov. John J. Gilligan was roasted for, among other things, his vacations in Michigan.

"Brothers and sisters, we know we all have a destiny," the preacher preached. "And our destiny is often our destination. We need a destination so that we can vacation."

"For it is written in the Columbus Dispatch...Then he loaded his wife and his family and his household goods and all that he could carry...and put it all in his DC3...and he did exodus that land to flee to Michigan."

"And he landed in a place called Credibility Gap."

President Nixon was gigged in a quick four-liner:

"Everybody was worrying about the German influence in the Nixon administration, what with Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Kissinger," said one man. "But I wasn't worried 'til they started using Mazda engines on their tape recorders."

"Mazda engines?" asked the straight man.

"Sure," was the reply. "Everyone knows a Mazda goes 'Hummmmm.'"

State Auditor Joseph Ferguson was one of three Ohio politicians scalded for trying to pass on their offices to their sons. Ferguson's son, Deputy State Auditor Thomas Ferguson, is a candidate to succeed his father in 1974.

"Climb upon my name, Tommy Boy," he sang. "Grab a little fame, Tommy Boy."

"You're the next in line; Though I'm still in my prime; Little pal of mine, Tommy Boy."

The annual show closed with a chorus to the tune, "When the Saints Go Marching In":

"Oh when those votes start coming in; The campaign's died down to a din; All candidates will want to be there; When those votes start coming in."

"Oh when those polls close down at least; And all the ballots have been cast; Only the voters will be losers; When those polls close down at last."

Poor Richard's Plan

By JIM BISHOP

There is a feeling among people that, until Watergate, President Richard Nixon was a folk hero in America. It isn't so. From the day, in 1946, when he decided to run for Congress in California against the veteran Jerry Voorhis, his merciless game plans have engendered fear among Republicans as well as Democrats.

Nixon's mentor was Mr. Murray Chotiner, California lawyer and public-relations expert. It was Chotiner who taught the young Navy Lieutenant-Commander the value of the "half-truth." Basically, the strategy remained constant:

Maintain an aura of honesty; smear your opponent with innuendo and exaggerated guilt; cry piteously that your enemies are smearing you. In the first campaign, Nixon charged the conservative Voorhis with being a radical.

Nixon claimed that the Congressman was backed by the Political Action Committee. "They get their political orders from Moscow." In sum, the secretive, slimy Kremlin wanted to elect Jerry Voorhis over the poor, guileless Richard Nixon.

It worked then. And, except for the beating by Governor Pat Brown in 1962 and the narrowing victory of John F. Kennedy in 1960, it has remained viable.

Senator Sheridan Downey vacated his seat in 1950. The G.O.P. nominated Nixon. The Democrats put up Helen Gahagan Douglas. The Communist issue was still paramount because, where the Justice Department had failed to expose Alger Hiss as a Soviet spy, Nixon successfully prosecuted him on a prejudy charge.

A "pink sheet" was circulated in California, charging that Mrs.

Douglas, in many cases, voted with Vito Marcantonio, a Communist-leaning New York Congressman. This was true in legislation which had nothing to do with Communism. The sheet did not mention that Nixon and Marcantonio often voted together.

Nixon won. A feeling pervaded Washington that, somehow, it was "un-American" to run against Poor Richard. He was on his way up. Dwight Eisenhower was entreated to consider Nixon as his Vice Presidential running mate.

Someone exposed Nixon as accepting $18,000-a-year from California businessmen. Ike wavered. Murray Chotiner taught Nixon how to "tough it out" by getting on television and choking back the tears. Nixon had been caught, but he told of his life struggle, his children, Pat's good Republican cloth coat, and the gift of a little doggie named Checkers.

Eisenhower was so affected by the evasions that he shouted, "That's my boy!" However, after Ike had worked with Nixon a while, a reporter at a press conference asked the President what Nixon was doing to help the Administration.

"Give me a week," he growled, "and I'll think of something."

America began to hear of a "New Nixon." Then there was the "New New Nixon." Paul Hoffman, in his book, "The New Nixon," observed: "He knows his drawbacks and has tried to correct or at least compensate for them."

"Yet for all his efforts to create the image of a 'New Nixon' he has been unable to erase fully the memory of 'Tricky Dick,' the masterful manipulator, the man you wouldn't buy a used car from."

When Nixon ran for President, a Nelson Rockefeller adviser seemed shocked. "Richard Nixon," he said, "is the most dangerous of all men to have running as President." The adviser was Henry Kissinger.

In 1960, newspaper correspondents on Nixon's plane staged a private poll and voted for Kennedy. In 1962, Merle Miller, author of "Plain Speaking," asked Harry Truman his opinion of Nixon:

"Now let's not get into that . . . He not only doesn't give a damn about the people; he doesn't know how to tell the truth. I don't think the s.o.b. knows the difference between telling the truth and lying."

Nixon was a gut fighter and perhaps a below-the-gut-fighter. In early 1972, before Watergate, James M. Perry, author of "Us and Them," sent a questionnaire to political writers. Among the kindest descriptions of President Nixon were these:

"A square, works hard, rounded political skills." "Astute, able, experienced." They were the few. The many wrote:

"Mean, dark impulses." "Slippery." "Contemptuous of people's intelligence." "Basically a bad man." "Tricky." "Deceptive, lies, plays games."

Assuming that any of these opinions are valid, how is it that we the people did not hear about them until after Watergate? The President likes the appellation "Poor Rich," but it's a contradiction in terms . . .

Suburb Eyes Secession From Cincy

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A group of disgruntled citizens from suburban Mt. Washington are investigating the possibility of seceding from Cincinnati.

"It's not a joke up here," said Mrs. Elmer Meyer, secretary of the Mt. Washington Civic Club. She said the community is tired of promises and is angry over the city's failure to improve traffic congestion on Beechmont Avenue.

Robert Vetter, president of the group, said he has been asked to obtain information on secession from the Hamilton County commissioners.

He said numerous residents "have wearied of awaiting action by the City of Cincinnati on our many problems here."

Mt. Washington was annexed to Cincinnati in 1911 and marked its 100th anniversary in 1967.

Another suburb, Avondale, sought secession in 1968 and its representatives were told there was no law to permit such action.

Vote To Probe GM Practices

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Civil Rights Commission voted Tuesday to investigate employment practices by the General Motors Corp. Fisher Body Division in Columbus and the Kroger Co. in Dayton.

The commission said it was taking the action after staff surveys indicated possible discrimination against minorities and women in such areas as hiring and promotion.

Rail Commuters Hit By Streaking

NEW YORK (AP) — The nickname for a Long Island Rail Road commuter is "Dashing Dan" but the riders on the 8:01 out of Huntington were treated to a streaking "Dashing Danielle."

The naked young woman flashed down the aisle of the Manhattan bound train Monday then ran out the rear door where a man waited for her with a coat and automobile.

It was the first time the railroad reported a delay due to streaking.

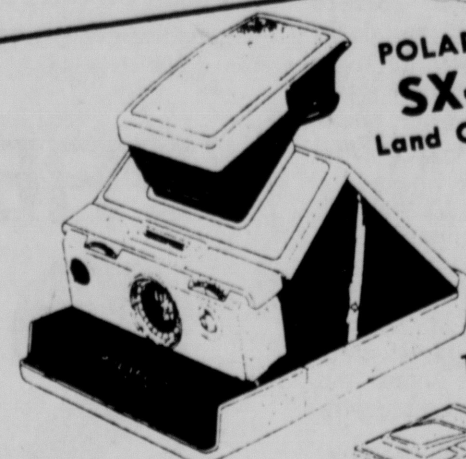

Glue Provides School Holiday

WESTPALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — More than 1,900 Forest Hill High School students got an extra day of spring vacation after someone filled the school's locks with rock-hard epoxy glue.

Classes were canceled Monday while maintenance men tried to find a way to open the school's doors and gates. Blowtorches finally unglued the locks. A school spokesman said the locks will have to be replaced.

Illinois Governor Takes Spin In Auto With Coal-Gasoline

CHICAGO (AP) — Illinois Gov. Daniel Walker took a car for a spin in downtown Chicago using gasoline refined from coal. He said the fuel process is a partial answer to the energy crisis.

"No stall, no sputter, no ping," Walker said after the drive with the experimental fuel Monday.

"If we are to solve the energy problem, working toward a self-sufficient nation; if we are to protect our air, keeping it safe, then we will have to develop the technology and build plants to convert coal to oil and natural gas and gasoline," he said.

The gasoline Walker used cost $266 a gallon to produce and his brief spin in heavy traffic used about $66 worth.

It was 92 octane—the equivalent of premium gasoline.

The demonstration kicked off a conference on developing Illinois' estimated 148 billion tons of unmined coal.

The governor said he learned recently that gasoline could be derived from coal, so he ordered 15 gallons for demonstrations.

Oil officials estimated that it would take 7 to 10 years to build a refinery in Illinois that would produce 100,000 barrels of fuel a day from coal. They said a potential 120 gallons of gasoline could be refined from one ton of coal.

They estimated the cost of setting up such a project would be about $500 million, with a gallon of coal-gasoline selling for about 70 cents.

"That might look pretty cheap 10 years from now," said Ted Tom of the Amoco Oil Co. laboratory in Whiting, Ind.

Experimental processes on a very limited scale were why Walker's 15 gallons of gasoline cost about $4,000 to produce.

The southern Illinois coal was processed into crude oil at Hydrocarbon Research at Trenton, N.J. The gasoline was refined at Amoco's Whiting lab with small scale processing equipment.

Walker said he believes it was the first time a passenger car has been run in the United States on gasoline derived from coal.

Storms Hit Northwest, Gulf States

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thunderstorms accompanied by coastal gale warnings drenched the nation's Northwest today, while heavy rains and small hail pelted the central Gulf coast states.

A Pacific cold front spread rain from central California and western Nevada to the Canadian border.

Another front along the Gulf triggered thunderstorms from eastern Texas into Alabama, and severe thunderstorm warnings were issued at many points.

Hail the size of marbles struck Mobile, Ala., and New Orleans received more than 4 inches of rain during 24 hours.

In addition, heavy fog blanketed much of the Gulf coast, while drizzle spread to the Atlantic coast of Georgia.

Temperatures remained cold in the Northeast, and scattered snow flurried in parts of New England, New York and the upper Great Lakes.

Elsewhere, fair skies and milder weather were common.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 1 at Pellston, Mich., to 76 at Key West, Fla.

Capitol Art Show Draws Notables

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Irish ambassador, eight congressmen and a senator came to an art show in the Capitol this week to pay homage to Irish seascapes painter Val McGann.

It was the latest in a series of three-month exhibitions begun two years ago after Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio took over chairmanship of the House Administration Committee.

Hays cleared out the black-and-white photographs of former committee chairmen and replaced them with loaned paintings by contemporary artists.

He and the Capitol architect envision not only more revolving shows — they are booked through 1976 — but also a bicentennial exhibition.

The McGann opening drew more celebrities than any other.

The Irish ambassador, John Gerald Molloy, came because McGann is the first Irishman honored with a Capitol showing. Maine Rep. William Hathaway was there because McGann now lives and paints in Ogunquit, Maine.

Majority Leader Thomas "Tip" O'Neill and Reps. James Burke and Joe Moakley, all Massachusetts Democrats, attended partly because McGann is married to Anna Houton, a member of a Boston family active in Democratic politics.

This also drew Sen. George McGovern, because some of the Houtons had worked in his presidential campaign.

Also there was Rep. Bob Mathias, R-Calif. He and McGann are both former

7 Arrested In Hijacking

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The FBI said Tuesday that it has arrested five more men and charged them in connection with the hijacking of a Richman Brothers clothing truck.

Frederick C. Fehl, special agent in charge of the Cleveland office, said the five were charged with receiving, possessing and concealing property stolen from an interstate shipment.

Fehl identified those arrested as Leonard Geiss, 34; Dominick Dornendo, 50, and Francesco A. Brese, 22, all of Cleveland; Norman Way, 53, of Brunswick, and Anthony Schwab, 26, of Bedford.

The FBI previously announced the arrest of two other men in connection with hijacking, which took place here March 5.

decathlon champions.

"I met him in Dublin when he came there to run on his way to the 1948 Olympic games in London," McGann said. "He was my hero. I never saw him again until now."

McGann started painting when he was 12, growing up in County Galway in Ireland, but he became known as an athlete, not a painter, in his native land.

He held the Irish pole vault record for six years and continued in decathlon events between the ages of 19 and 30.

When he was 35, he left his office job and took up painting fulltime. He irritated local gallery owners by painting small Irish scenes and pricing them cheaply, for the tourists.

One tourist returned repeatedly, year after year, and encouraged McGann to paint fulltime. She was Katherine Howard, who traveled down from Waltham, Mass., for the Capitol showing.

McGann married Anna Houton four years ago, after meeting her in Ireland, and immigrated to the United States. In Ogunquit, he keeps himself in shape by braving the breakers in a kayak the year round.

McGann brought 62 paintings to the Capitol showing, priced between $80 and $1,000.

Court Ruling Effect Eyed On Elections

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Secretary of State Ted Brown says he doesn't think a new U.S. Supreme Court ruling will cripple Ohio's election procedure.

The court ruling said states can't use filing fees as a device to keep poor candidates off the ballots. Ohio requires filing fees of up to $50.

"The filing fee is just a good faith gesture, a small per cent of what it takes to hold elections," Brown said Tuesday. "But it keeps Rudolph the Red Nosed Reindeer and a lot of others off the ballot."

The Supreme Court decision struck down a California filing requirement. The court said a "compelling need" must be shown for requiring a filing fee.

"I'm sure the court didn't just issue a blanket ruling," Brown said of the decision. "I'm sure Ohio can work out some way to keep the balloting process practical and still satisfy the courts."

He said, for example, that an indigent candidate may be required to file a statement of his financial status if he wanted to run without paying the fee.

Under current law, candidates for Congress, the governor's office or any other state position must file a fee of $50.

Candidates for county office pay a fee amounting to one-half of one per cent of the first year's salary to a maximum of $50.

"Even a write-in candidate has to file that $50 to get his votes counted," Brown said. "It would be too impractical otherwise to be keeping a tally of all the names that might be written in."

He said a full reading of the court's opinion is necessary before state officials can decide what action to take.

Foreman Stops Norton

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Call him the "Lightning Destroyer"—big George Foreman is a heavyweight champion who works as if he left the car running outside.

He offers a bleak future for his next and most hated foe, Muhammad Ali, whom he's supposed to meet in September in Africa.

"I think I can whip Ali in two rounds," the 6-foot-3, 224-pound one-time juvenile delinquent said after crushing challenger Ken Norton into a slab of helpless beef in five minutes

Tuesday night before 9,000 at the Poldiro.

It was quick and merciful.

The awesome-looking Foreman, with arms like wagon tongues and shoulders like a blacksmith, sent Norton reeling into the ropes twice for mandatory eight counts in the second round and crashed him to canvas with a thunderclap left hand.

Norton wobbled to his feet at the count of eight but his trainer, Bill Slayton, leaped into the ring and the controversial referee, Jimmy Rondeau of Seattle, stopped the slaughter at 2 minutes flat of the second round.

"I would have stopped it, anyway," Rondeau said afterward. "Norton was in no condition to go on."

Now in three heavyweight title fights in the space of 14 months, Foreman has literally shredded three opponents in the combined time of 11 minutes and 43 seconds.

He floored Joe Frazier six times in Kingston, Jamaica, and won the heavyweight title in 4 minutes, 43 seconds. On Aug. 31 in Tokyo he stopped Joe "King" Roman in two minutes flat. Norton lasted five.

It is a series of triumphs reminiscent of the blinking eye triumphs of the great Joe Louis, the Brown Bomber, in the period before World War II.

"Joe had a lot to do with my winning so easily tonight," Foreman said in the dressing room. "When he was introduced in the ring, he reached over and whispered in my ear, 'Remember you're the champ—stay cool.' That's what I did."

Muhammad Ali, whose very appearance often sends fight fans into a screaming frenzy, was at ringside as closed circuit TV commentator, and he couldn't have been comforted by what befell his big brown eyes.

Earlier, in picking Norton, Ali had said Foreman was little more than an awkward amateur. "He's slow and sluggish and can't move—he's an easy target for a pro," Ali said, "but I still think I can beat him. He hits harder than I do, but I am a better boxer. I'll dance and sting him to death."

Ali got an echo from his trainer, the veteran Angelo Dundee of Miami, Fla. "I hope to God Foreman fights us like he did Norton," said Dundee. "Ali will move, stick him and pick him to pieces with straight punches. Ali will be the new champion."

CHS Tigers Open Baseball Season At Washington C. H.

Circleville High School's baseball team will open the season today under the direction of new head coach John Lawhorn when the Tigers travel to Washington C. H. to take on the Blue Lions in a South Central Ohio League contest set for 4:30 p.m.

Lawhorn has taken over the Tiger reins from Dannie Fouts who resigned as head coach at the conclusion of the 1973 season.

It appears that it will be a rebuilding season for the Tigers with only six lettermen returning from last year's team.

A total of 26 candidates are making their bid for a berth on the squad. They have been hard at work and some promising prospects are on tap to make the Tiger outlook a little sunnier. It will be a case of the seasoned veterans carrying the pace until the new candidates can get a little experience under their belts.

Lettermen returning to form the nucleus of this year's edition of the Tigers are: Rock Davis, senior, who will move from his third base position into 1B-OF; Mike Speakman, senior, OF-P; Jeff See, senior, C-OF; Mark Scherer, senior, 2B-SS; Perry Hoskins, junior, SS-P; and Phil Roll, junior, P-3B-1B.

Senior candidates making their bid are: Doug Moore, 1B-OF; Rick Hartinger, OF; and Robin Ott, P-1B.

Juniors bidding for berths are: Steve Beckley, 3B-OF; Dave Bevan, SS-2B; Paul Combs, 1B-C; Mike Diltz, 2B-SS-P; Mark Mace, C-OF; Tim McNaughton, OF; Pat McNaughton, OF-3B; Randy Thomas, P-3B-1B; and John Wickline, OF.

Sophomores out for the team are: Keith Poling, 1B-OF; Brent Mancini, P-1B; Brian Augustine, 2B; Bob Baranick, 1B-OF; Biff Bumgarner, P-3B; Bill Crable, 2B-SS; Tim Hartinger, 1B-OF; Luke Lawhorn, 1B-C; Keith Sanders, 3B-OF; Jerry Strawser, 3B-OF; and Doug McGlone, P-OF.

Team managers will be Joe Burgess, Joe Koch and Terry Merriman.

Views On Television

NEW YORK (AP) — A key recommendation in a recent White House report on cable television says there should be "no restrictions" on ownership of cable-TV systems by newspapers, magazines or broadcasters. Question: Isn't that at odds with efforts by the Justice Department's antitrust division to have the Federal Communications Commission break up four newspaper-broadcast combinations in St. Louis, Des Moines and Minneapolis? "Only superficially," answers Dr. Clay Whitehead, head of the White House Office of Telecommunications Policy and chairman of a Cabinet committee which put together the 122-page cable-TV report. "You have to back off and ask why Justice and a lot of other people are upset by crossownership of the media," he said, referring to cases in which print media own broadcast stations and vice versa.

"The answer lies in the fact that our media has become far more concentrated economically. Fewer companies own the major media. "So the result is when a TV station, let's say, buys a newspaper or vice versa, the public in essence is deprived of one independent outlet of expression."

monopoly. It even has the approval of the Justice Department, he said. This, he added, is because it only would let the owner of a cable-TV system control and program for "one or two of his own channels" and make him lease the other channels to outsiders on a competitive basis. "Now, if we allow the cable operator to control all his channels," he said, "not only would he have a tremendous monopoly — you've got to remember we're talking 30 to 50 channels — you'd have the same problem of outlets of expression being owned by one company."

Wolves Are Endangered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Men have placed bounties on wolf pelts for more than 2,500 years. The animals have been speared, clubbed, shot, trapped, poisoned and machine-gunned from airplanes. They have been so decimated that today wolves are listed as an endangered species. The only areas in North America where wolves remain in appreciable numbers are Alaska and parts of Canada. Naturalists have been gaining public support for their efforts to protect these packs.

Politicians Shun Gun Control

By The Associated Press

Candidates for state and federal office in Ohio are treading softly on the issue of gun controls, a poll of office-seekers showed Tuesday.

Most indicated they hoped the courts would break ground on the ticklish issue that separates sportsmen and pro-gun enthusiasts on the one hand, and law enforcement and antigun people on the other.

Figuring in any stand on weapons control is a pro-gun lobby numbering 50,000 or more in Ohio, by National Rifle Association statistics.

And, political observers agree, gun control is a gut-level issue among blue-collar voters whose studies have shown are more likely to keep weapons for protection against crime.

Responses were overwhelmingly in opposition to weapons control from a cross-section of candidates for Ohio House and Senate.

U.S. Senate candidates from Ohio, however, indicated a more favorable attitude to some forms of registration of weapons or bans on handgun sales.

U.S. Senate candidates on the Democratic ticket, Sen. Howard Metzenbaum and former astronaut John Glenn, said they both favor bans on the manufacture, sale or importation of so-called "Saturday night specials." This label applies to cheap, easily accessible handguns that have no patently, provable, sporting purpose.

Neither would restrict sale of rifles, collector's items, or guns used for hunting or target shooting.

Metzenbaum, however, said he favors registration of handguns, while Glenn says he does not, claiming it is "unworkable."

Cleveland Mayor Ralph Perk, a Republican candidate for U.S. Senate, has come out strongly in favor of federal or state weapons controls, but agrees that local registration of handguns might not be efficient.

Both Glenn and Metzenbaum said they supported closing a loophole in a recently-passed Congressional bill that would allow parts, tools and dyes for cheap handguns to be imported into the United States for assembly.

On the state level, the House Rules committee is studying a proposal that would outlaw the sale of "Saturday night specials," defined as handguns that melt or deform at a temperature of 800 degrees fahrenheit.

The lawmakers have rejected an outright ban of pistol sales.

A check of responses to questionnaires to candidates from The Associated Press showed most of the

would-be candidates reflected the views of their opponents in office: Some control should be exercised to keep weapons from criminals, but honest citizens should be free to keep and bear arms if they wish.

USDA Tax Snooping Order Model For Other Agencies

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's order giving the Agriculture Department access to tax files on farmers was a model for snooping into tax returns throughout the government, according to a congressional committee.

The order, issued in January 1973, was revoked last week. It permitted the department to inspect more than three million federal income tax returns of farmers to compile mailing lists for statistical surveys.

According to the House foreign operations and government information subcommittee, which held hearings last summer on the plan, "the first executive order had been drawn up as a model for future executive orders opening tax returns for similar statistical uses by other federal agencies."

The panel said in its report that the Justice Department, confirming this, wrote: "The original order was prepared by the Department of the Treasury in language designed to serve as a prototype for future tax return inspection orders."

Rep. Bill Alexander, D-Ark., a member of the parent Committee on Government Operations, asked rhetorically in a separate report whether the first order would allow the Department of Commerce to inspect businessmen's tax returns.

"Is this evidence of a master plan of the federal government to oversee the private affairs of every group of citizens?" he asked. "We were shocked at what we eventually uncovered. A committee hearing confirmed our worst fears."

"I for one am not going to stand idly by while the first waves from 1984 wash over me," he said.

The 1973 order was announced in a notice in the Federal Register but was not publicized by the Agriculture Department. Critics on Capitol Hill voiced fears that the government would not restrict itself to information for statistical surveys.

Dr. Don Paarlberg, the Agriculture Department's director of economics, told the committee that the IRS and his department were ready to design safeguards to prevent the abuse of the information.

But one observer said, "you wonder why this wasn't publicized from the beginning, especially if it was for the glorious purpose they said it was for."

Although the order was revoked last week, Rep. Abraham Kazen Jr., D-Tex., introduced a bill Monday amending the Internal Revenue Code to restrict the authority for inspection of tax returns and the disclosure of information in the returns.

Government Beef Purchase Plan May Hike Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Department officials admit that government plans to buy $45 million worth of high quality hamburger to help prop up cattle prices also could boost beef prices at supermarkets.

"It will have an upward thrust in cattle prices, but it's impossible to say how much," John Larsen, a USDA livestock economist said. "But it will be a little shot in the arm for producers."

Other department officials said they could not estimate how much the spring beef-buying campaign, announced Tuesday, might add to consumer meat costs if cattle prices rise as planned.

"The amount to be bought is small, very small, and is more of a gesture than anything," one official said, asking not to be identified. "It could make 100,000 cattlemen feel better and 200 million other people mad."

Drug Abuse, Mental Health Before Assembly

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Major bills giving Ohio a tough new drug abuse law and establishing a "bill of rights" for mental patients were before state lawmakers today.

The House scheduled an afternoon vote on the drug bill submitted by Atty. Gen. William J. Brown. Among other things, it would deny probation to persons convicted of the most serious drug offenses, and offer new rehabilitation opportunities for addicts.

At the same time, the Senate scheduled a vote on a bill by Sen. Oliver Ocasek, D-27 Akron, designed to give mental patients periodic examinations and evaluations so as to eliminate the so-called "forgotten patient."

Action on those bills and possible consideration of no fault auto insurance by a Senate committee were expected to push the legislature along in its efforts to call a 30-day recess at the end of next week.

A Senate-House subcommittee worked Tuesday night on final details of a compromise bill to create a state energy board to help deal with the energy problem, while the House

Judiciary Committee put finishing touches on an omnibus bill to create 36 new judgeships in the state and eliminate embattled mayors' courts.

In other areas, a measure to ban sale or manufacture of cheap handguns known as "Saturday night specials" continued to languish in the House Rules Committee where sponsors have tried for the past week to get it out for a floor vote. Each time the latest Tuesday, it has fallen one vote short of seven needed among the 13 committee members.

The Senate refused unanimously, as expected, to go along with House changes in a major bill revising Ohio's campaign financing laws. Leaders named a joint conference committee to try to resolve differences. These include a Senate demand for penalty section revisions that could clear the way for Sen. Donald E. "Buz" Lukens, R-4 Middletown, to seek public office again in 1976.

Lukens was ruled off Ohio ballots for five years in 1973 for failing to file his 1972 campaign financial statement on time.

Presidential Tapes Used In Vesco Trial

NEW YORK (AP) — For the first time in a criminal trial, lawyers for former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and one-time Commerce secretary Maurice H. Stans have had recourse to White House tapes of conversations with the President.

Transcripts from two of the tapes were used in a searching cross-examination Tuesday of ousted White House counsel John W. Dean III at the conspiracy trial of Mitchell and Stans. So was a White House summary of a third tape.

Dean was scheduled to testify again today.

Mitchell and Stans are accused of impeding a massive fraud investigation by the Securities and Exchange Commission against financier Robert L. Vesco, in return for his secret $200,000 cash contribution to President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign.

At one point Tuesday, Dean testified that he concealed from President Nixon a request last year from Mitchell for "action" by Mitchell's successor, Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst, against the federal grand jury that eventually indicted the two defendants.

The testimony was based on a White House tape, as was subsequent testimony relating to Stans.

The government charges that Stans tried to conceal Vesco's contribution by failing to report it under a new law that became effective April 7, 1972, three days before the money changed hands.

Stans then was chairman of the Finance Committee to ReElect the President. It is his claim that he acted in accord with legal advice that Vesco's pledge of the money before the reporting deadline made the concealment legal.

Referring to a White House conversation of Feb. 28, 1973, Dean was asked on cross examination:

"On that date, didn't you inform the President of the United States, 'I think we have a good strong case that the donor of the money, Robert Vesco, had relinquished control of the money and constructive possession of the money was in the hands of the finance committee?'"

"Yes, I did," Dean replied.

But the government later asked: "Wasn't the basis of your statement to the President at that time what Mr. Stans told you?"

"That is correct," replied Dean.

Also at issue in the trial is whether

Milk Funds Given To Both Parties

WASHINGTON (AP) — An internal audit shows the Associated Milk Producers Inc. directed corporate money to both sides of the political street during President Nixon's first term.

The audit and a lawyer's report on the co-op's past activities were obtained from court records.

Until President Nixon took office in 1969, the giant dairy cooperative backed mostly Democrats. The audit traces $91,691 in corporate money used to help Hubert H. Humphrey's 1968 campaign against Nixon.

But after Nixon's victory, the co-op leaders decided to make peace with the Republicans. Harold S. Nelson, the co-op's general manager, drew $5,000 in corporate funds to buy tickets to a Republican victory dinner in 1969, the audit shows.

In August, a co-op lawyer delivered $100,000 in cash — now admitted to have been an illegal corporate donation — to the keeper of Nixon's secret political trust, Herbert L. Kalmbach.

But the audit shows the milk producers continued to aid Democrats with corporate money even as they solidified their alliance with the administration.

In 1970, about the time the milk producers were promising to raise $2 million for the President's then-distant re-election campaign, co-op funds reportedly flowed into the senatorial campaigns of Humphrey in Minnesota and of Edmund S. Muskie of Maine.

The co-op's former lobbyist, Bob A. Lilly, is quoted as saying he passed along $34,500 in corporation funds to Humphrey's campaign manager to pay campaign printing bills.

And a former lawyer for the co-op, Stuart H. Russell of Oklahoma City, is quoted as saying he was reimbursed from corporation funds for three contributions to the 1970 Muskie campaign, for a total of $8,400.

Humphrey, asked about both the 1968 and 1970 dairy money, said through a spokesman, "I have no knowledge of these transactions ... An organization as large as AMPI should have had the kind of legal counsel that would have prevented these types of transactions."

A Muskie spokesman said, "It's impossible to check on the veracity of every individual who claims he's giving an individual contribution. The campaign made very careful checks to see that no corporate funds were either solicited or accepted and money which could be identified as corporate funds was returned during the campaign."

The milk producers also used several Democrats in a complex paycheck scheme to cover the $100,000 gift to Nixon's trust. The arrangement generally called for phony legal fees or public relations fees to be paid to persons doing business with the milk producers.

These persons then relayed most of the money to Lilly to repay bank loans he had taken out to cover the Nixon gift and some other political expenses.

Among those listed as taking part in this arrangement were former Democratic party treasurer Richard Maguire, former Humphrey aides Ted Van Dyk and Kirby Jones, former Lyndon B. Johnson White House aide

Reach Compromise On Energy Plan

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John J. Gilligan and Republican leaders of the Senate have agreed on compromise energy legislation that includes creation of a five-member energy commission.

The compromise came Tuesday night at a meeting of a Senate-House subcommittee which for the past two weeks has been studying the issue of what kind of powers such a commission should have.

Sen. Michael J. Maloney, R-7 Cincinnati, the chairman, announced the compromise which provides that the five-member commission could, but only by unanimous vote, issue rules and regulations during an energy emergency good for a period of 30 days.

Gilligan had submitted to the Democratic House a proposal that called for a seven-member agency, named by him, which could have taken such actions with cursory review by the legislature.

Maloney and other Republicans, along with some Democrats, balked at the idea of delegating away legislative powers to an appointed agency and set out to try to find another solution.

Maloney called the compromise "reasonable," noting that the proposed make up of the commission would be such that "they couldn't act unanimously, I don't think, unless there really were an energy crisis."

The commission would be made up of the governor as chairman, two members of the legislature—representing each house and each political party—and two members representing the energy industry and the public. Gilligan would name the latter two, subject to approval of the Senate.

Otherwise, the commission would have the power to declare an energy crisis or emergency and to issue a public call for a special session of the legislature if it was not in session. It also could advise the legislature if it felt a crisis was approaching.

Another section of the bill provides that the commission must make a continuing study of the energy situation and submit recommendations to the legislature in the form of drafted bills.

Among a series of other amendments approved Tuesday night were those that would extend the life of the commission to Jan. 1, 1976—instead of June 30, 1975 as originally proposed—and prohibit it from entering into any contracts that would run beyond Jan. 1, 1976, except with the approval of the State Controlling Board.

Urge U.N. Environment Planning

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The chairman of the President's Council on Environmental Quality proposed Tuesday night new planning through the United Nations to preserve the environment.

Dr. Russell W. Peterson, a former governor of Delaware, said the United States can lead the effort, but the problem is global, not national.

"The growing interdependence of all of us on planet Earth and the need for us to plan and work together is clear," Peterson said. "We need — perhaps through the United Nations — to formalize this point."

In remarks before a land-use planning conference here, Peterson said growing interdependence between nations is a major factor in determining the quality of life.

"Over the years, United States citizens have developed an independence, a self-sufficiency, a confidence that we could by ourselves accomplish anything," Peterson said.

"Now our nation is undergoing the psychological shock of learning that it is increasingly dependent upon others."

"With an ever-expanding technology and growing economic strength, we developed the belief that we could control and dominate our environment."

"Now, more and more, we realize that we must learn to live in harmony with nature — not as its master, but as one element in a complex and interdependent life-supporting system," he said.

"Miners used to take a bird with them into the mine to test the quality of their environment," he noted. "When the bird expired, they knew it was time to get out."

Cancer-Stricken Youth Receives Kennedy Letter

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Young Stephen Southerland, who lost a leg last week in a fight against cancer, was cheered Tuesday by a "boy-to-boy" letter from Edward Kennedy Jr. Kennedy is the son of U.S. Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass. Young Kennedy recently lost a leg to cancer.

Contents of the letter were not disclosed.

Stephen remained in satisfactory condition today.

He is undergoing chemotherapy and is testing his temporary artificial leg.

His two brothers were also afflicted with cancer. One died.

that some 600 other candidates at various levels statewide suffered the same harsh penalty.

Sen. Thomas A. Van Meter, R-19 Ashland, said he thinks the ban against running should be replaced with a fine. "The intent is to see that the candidates file. If they know its going to cost, they will file," he said.

Lukens claimed to have mailed his statement listing no receipts and no expenditures, but the Butler County Board of Elections said it was not received in time.

In other business, a "land mark" bill regulating surface mining for all energy except coal—covered in a 1971 law—was approved without dissent at an hour-long Senate floor session.

Sen. Harry Meshel, D-33 Youngstown, said the bill represents 14 months of negotiations among lawmakers, the Department of Natural Resources, and industry representatives.

The bill provides for 10-year permits and requires approval of reclamation plans in advance for miners for sand, gravel, clay, shale, gypsum, halite, limestone, dolomite, sandstone, and other minerals.

Lukens won 29-2 approval of a floor amendment that allows strip miners for coal, as well as other minerals, to appeal from orders of the Reclamation Board of Review either in the county of operation or in the Franklin County Common Pleas Court.

The 1971 law stipulates that coal operator may appeal only in Franklin County. Lukens said the new law giving surface miners a choice of where to appeal, without his amendment, "would discriminate against strip miners."

The bill now goes to the House, along with two others approved by the Senate during an hour-long floor session. The others permit public employees to pay debts through so-called debt pooling companies and lets superintendents and other school board employees receive compensation for attending professional meetings without advance approval of the boards.

One new bill was introduced in the Senate. It requires the watercraft division to post and maintain markers warning canoeists and others of dams, rapids, and other stream hazards.

As its floor session, the House approved and sent to the Senate a bill that would permit municipal corporations to assess property owners for removal of litter after a 10-day notice.

The bill was amended on the floor to extend the notice from five to 10 days and to make it permissive rather than mandatory.

As written, the bill would have required municipalities to give notice to a property owner with litter that he had five days to clean it up before the community did it and billed him.

The House passed 91-2 a bill increasing from five to 10 years the limit for which a tax levy for support of a community mental health and retardation service program could be approved. It now goes to the Senate.

The House passed 92-1 and sent to Gov. John J. Gilligan for signing a Senate bill that would reduce from six to five the number of paid holidays for a non-teaching school employee hired on a nine or 10 months basis.

A bill was introduced in the House by Rep. James Celebrezze, D-4 Cleveland, to create a crimes compensation board to study claims from the victims of a crime.

Markets

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices edged lower today as the market continued the aimless wandering it began last week.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off .54 at 883.14, and losers outpaced gainers by close to 3-to-2 in light trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said the market appeared unable to find any cause for either enthusiasm or anxiety. Many investors seemed simply to be waiting to see whether interest rates would continue their recent upswing, or if the down-trend in money rates earlier in the year would reassert itself.

Pittston Co., up 1/4 at 33 3/4, was the Big Board volume leader. Analysts said the company appeared to be attracting buyers because of its coal interests.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index was up .04 at 98.30.

The NYSE's noon composite index of all its listed common stocks was down .17 at 52.13.

Coaching Contracts Topic For LE Board

In the third meeting this month of the Logan Elm Board of Education, plans for filling supplemental coaching contracts were made. The board offered the varsity basketball coaching position to former reserve coach Asa Bradbury.

In other action concerning the supplemental contracts, the board declared the varsity football head coach and assistant coaching positions open. Superintendent John Henn was authorized to accept applications for the positions immediately.

Employment was offered to William Hough as a substitute teacher to replace Mrs. Gordon, a science teacher at McDowell Exchange School. Mrs. Gordon resigned her position to join her husband who is in the armed forces.

The board approved an advance draw of $50,000 to meet the February payroll.

Members of the board concurred with county prosecuting attorney Richard L. Gerhardt that religion classes may not be taught during school hours nor in school buildings. Consequently, a request to teach Bible classes at Washington Elementary School was denied.

A resolution was passed to contact all members of the House Commerce and Labor Committee to urge a quick hearing and passage of Senate Bill 479.

Ill-Fated Jet Didn't Have Modified Door

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate subcommittee investigating the world's worst airline crash is turning to the question of how the DC10 jumbo jet left the factory without a key modification to a cargo door.

The panel heard testimony Tuesday that an investigation of the crash, which killed 346 people, showed that the aircraft apparently lacked a small plate on the door-latching system that had been recommended by federal officials in mid-1972 after a DC10 was involved in a near accident.

The crash of the Turkish airline jumbo jet near Paris earlier this month came after the rear cargo door apparently blew off, causing explosive depressurization of the craft, buckling the floor of the cabin and damaging controls to the rudder, federal safety officials testified before the panel.

Officials of the National Transportation Safety Board testified that its probe of the crash showed that a man unable to read cautionary instructions was responsible for closing the cargo door that blew off in flight.

Former Federal Aviation Administrator John Shaffer said the door latch was the apparent cause of the crash.

Shaffer heatedly challenged testimony that he in effect vetoed a recommendation calling for a mandatory order directing corrections in the latching system.

The official, Arvin Basnight, testified that he proposed a mandatory order only to find his recommendation rebuffed. The recommendation was made after a similar incident involving a DC10 occurred at Detroit in mid-1972, causing a forced landing.

Shaffer told reporters he ordered a service bulletin sent to all airlines telling them how to make necessary design changes. Although this order is voluntary, Shaffer said that under the circumstances it was just as strong as an air worthiness directive, which would have grounded all DC10s until the recommended changes were made.

The bill if passed would eliminate unemployment compensation for cooks, bus drivers and other uncertified school employees during summer months when school is not in session.

Board approval was given to order custodial supplies along with approval to advertise for five new replacement buses. The approval for order is coupled with the understanding that the board reserved the right to reject all or any bids prior to actual issuing of the purchase order.

A length discussion was held concerning plans to follow to inform citizens of the urgent need for the operating levy which will be submitted to voters on the May primary ballot.

Citizens will be asked to help on various committees and to become involved so they may become fully aware of the needs of the school district. It was brought out that new residents in the district must register to be eligible to vote by April 8. Registrations are accepted until that deadline at the board of elections.

Since the next board meeting is scheduled for April 1, the proposed annexation and several other important items concerning the Logan Elm District were delayed until that time. Board members present were Don Bower, Virginia Wood, Roger Hobbie, Frank Seimer and Robert Bowers.

Absenteeism High

Complaints are heard now and then of working conditions such as monotonous production lines, jobs which present little challenge and so forth. Little is heard from the other side of the coin. If employers felt free to honestly assess their employees, what might they say?

Undoubtedly the remarks would vary from company to company and between industries. But what some of the bosses might say is that too many employees goof off. And a study by the American Society for Personnel Administration might bear them out.

After surveying 931 firms in varied businesses, industries and research organizations throughout the United States, the study found absenteeism averaged nine days a year per employee. Banks ranked lowest with an average of 6.7 days absenteeism per employee, with research and development firms, retail establishments and hospitals at the top of the list, averaging almost 10 days annually.

Illness and personal problems were the primary reasons for the absences, which on the average cost the employers $146 annually for each employee on the payroll. While

"deterioration of the work ethic" was noted, employers also were found negligent in supervision and establishing standards of attendance.

Put Fun In Fun City

ON THE LINE
By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK — New York's doughty little mayor, Abe Beame, announced the other day that he has a revolutionary plan to make our town habitable after sunset. It is his walk-talk project. As Abe explained it to an Overseas Press Club luncheon honoring him on his 68th birthday, the main trouble with Fun City is that not many of its residents think it's much fun to get to know one another.

Some New Yorkers go through a lifetime and never say hello to the people in the next apartment, he said in effect, and that's true. During the big power failure of some years back there was a frightening pounding on our apartment door. We took our candle and walked to the door, opened it and found — in the otherwise Stygian black hall — a hysterical lady we had never before seen.

We took her in, naturally, and learned that we had been living together for three years separated by a wall so thin that we could hear her brushing her hair. But our paths had never crossed, though our front doors were separated by hardly 12 inches.

What had happened, it developed, was that she had taken a short nap while awaiting the arrival home of her husband, and during the nap all the lights of New York and the Northeast section of the U.S. and parts of Canada went blewie. Awakening, she thought she had gone blind, screamed for her husband (who was caught in a stranded elevator high above blacked-out Wall Street), panicked, bowled over furniture, opened her door and began pound on ours.

We poured a few drinks for the trembling lady, gave her a candle, and sent her home — blind. We never saw her again.

That's the New York our mayor is determined to change. Abe said:

"When the weather clears, I'm going to select a neighborhood where 50 or 60 families live behind their bolted doors and urge them to come outside to walk and talk. Get to know each other. Be neighbors, in the old familiar sense. Maybe hardly five or six families will show up the first night. But I think that their experience will prompt ten or 12 families to walk and talk the next night, and so on and on until we have the whole neighborhood participating. Then we'll try the same thing in another part of town."

Who knows, some day Fun City may actually be fun.

Speaking of mayors, Mayor Teddy Kollek of Jerusalem, who was born in Vienna, paid a courtesy call on his old friend, Mayor Beame of New York, who was born in London.

Teddy, equally convivial, was surprised by the size and diligence of the security around Abe. By contrast, Teddy doesn't have a single cop or security guard at his office in Jerusalem, where peace has not yet broken out. He was even more surprised at the guard around President Nixon.

"In Jerusalem, we're about equally divided, Jews and Arabs," he says. "The old Jews who came there a long time ago are having their troubles with the new Jews from Africa and America. Both are having their troubles with the Arabs. But Jerusalem is everybody's capital. During the October War we must have had a hundred thousand visitors from different parts of the Arab world — from Kuwait, Algeria, Egypt and so forth. We couldn't have turned down more than 40 or 50 of them, for security reasons. Here we were at war, and Jerusalem was crowded with visitors and pilgrims. You could walk in peace and safety any place in the city, at any time of night, and be safe."

Presidents have been pooch-pooching popularity polls ever since FDR read in the Literary Digest that he was going to lose to Alf M. Landon. That is, they downgraded the importance of polls that indicate that they have lost favor among the rank and file of the voters.

But don't let them kid you; they read every word of Gallup, Harris and the others who make ominous mountains out of the likes and dislikes of a microscopic percentage of the voting multitudes. President Johnson used to bring out stacks of charts he had had prepared to show that he rated better than President Eisenhower once had. Later, when the Vietnam War turned his graphs into ski slides, LBJ would take comfort in showing visitors just how far he still remained ahead of President Truman's rating during the worst of the war in Korea.

Ol' Harry sank to a 23 before he hit absolute bottom. There's every reason to believe that President Nixon, who now stands at 26, must feel bolstered. After all, Ol' Harry weathered his crisis, and by now it is more or less of a cliché that he was one of the five or six greatest Presidents we ever had.

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The Tax Foundation points out that the average American spends 2 hours and 37 minutes of his work day to pay federal state and local taxes. That's more than 13 hours a week, or about four months a year.

Relentless in its pursuit of spenders, it notes further that the proposed federal budget for the coming year will average $4,013 for each of the nation's 71 million households, up $1,214 in just four years.

There is no limit to statistics such as these, as you might guess. But what often is lacking is an interpretation, especially in regard to where the money is going, and why.

One man with strong opinions is Prof. Roland N. McKean of the University of Virginia, an economist, author of various books, and contributor to United States government committees and panels.

Writing in the foundation's "Tax Review," he suggests that the "products" of government are inferior, wasteful dangerous and against the public good.

McKean says they include tariffs, price-support programs, regulatory programs, housing, welfare and defense.

"When I say that the consumer continues to face shoddy products, hazardous products, and misleading advertising, I think mainly of the public goods that he buys," McKean states.

He insists they should be examined in the same manner as private sector goods — from the standpoint of quality, safety, price, advertising and misleading information.

"As a consumer I do indeed feel put upon regarding the quality of my goods — but it's not so much because my hot dogs are 30 per cent chicken and bread crumbs; it's much more because my public goods often seem to be 70 per cent baloney," he said.

The public accounting firm of Coopers & Lybrand believes tax bills might be lower if waste was eliminated or reduced at the local levels. After auditing and further studying five middle-size cities, the company found:

—Antiquated budget systems.
—Failures in utilizing possible federal grants.

—Underutilization of electronic computers.

—Lack of modern management techniques for planning, controlling and evaluating operations.

Said Philip L. DeFleese, the firm's managing partner:

"Cities are organized to meet the public's needs, while businesses are established primarily to turn a profit. "But if cities would adopt more business practices they could deliver more public service at no more cost to the taxpayers."

California Law Voided

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court held today that states may not bar candidates from the ballot solely because they cannot afford a filing fee.

The decision, invalidating California's current filing fee requirement, was one of three issued today dealing with state election laws.

Writing for the majority in the California fee case, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger said California had chosen "to achieve the important and legitimate interest of maintaining the integrity of elections by means which operate to exclude some potentially serious candidates from the ballot without providing them with any alternative means of coming before the voters."

"Selection of candidates solely on the basis of ability to pay a fixed fee without providing any alternative means is not reasonably necessary to the accomplishment of the state's legitimate election interests," Burger said.

"Accordingly, we hold that in the absence of reasonable alternative means of ballot access, a state may not, consistent with constitutional standards, require from an indigent candidate filing fees he cannot pay," Burger wrote.

School Levy Defeated

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I have been taking digitalis for a mild heart condition for a long time. I am curious about how the drug works. The only explanation I can find is too complicated for me.

Mr. T.W.K., Wash., D.C.

Digitalis is a remarkable heart stimulant that first was extracted from the dried leaves of a plant, Digitalis Purpurea, known as "foxglove." Its use is one of the best examples of how plants have been found, by trial and error, to be effective in the treatment of illnesses.

Dr. William Withering, of Scotland, first used foxglove to treat a patient with dropsy. This abnormal collection of fluid in the body soon responded, and foxglove (digitalis) attained prominence.

Since then it has been learned that digitalis strengthens the heart muscle and helps it to pump more blood more efficiently throughout the body.

In addition to increasing the work capacity of the heart, it also acts in a very complicated way on the central nervous system.

It is indeed one of the most valuable drugs used by doctors.

I have been trying to find a definition for animum. I have even looked in medical dictionaries.

Miss E.R., S.C.

Your question intrigued me. I hunted, and finally found a description of this condition which I had, by the way, never heard of.

Dr. John P. Curran, of Jersey City, N.J., reported that a strand of wet hair from bath water can, when it dries, cut deeply into the skin of one of the toes.

Dr. Curran says he has seen a number of cases in which the toe is "strangled" by the dried strand of hair.

This is "ainhim." You and I have both learned something.

Has there been any news about the results of acupuncture for nerve deafness?

Mrs. P.A.K., Ohio

The studies are in progress by a number of reliable sources. No encouraging reports are yet available.

Many people do themselves a great injustice by prematurely becoming involved with the acupuncture technique for deafness, which is still speculative.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

My name was Ashville. I was built in the bed of the great Teays River. I was a beautiful little village; quite and serene, a farm community.

You could sit out on your porch in the Spring and hear the robins busily gathering twigs and string for their nests. You could smell the odor of freshly plowed backyard gardens. See the children at play in neighboring yards, enjoying the first warm days with glee and exuberance.

In the Summer you could sit in the yard in the cool of the evening and converse with your neighbor next door about the heat and still hear the raincrow calling for much needed rain. You could hear the laughter of other neighbors enjoying a backyard barbecue or a swim in their back-yard pool.

In the fall as you walked along the street kicking at the beautiful fallen leaves you could find out the news of the day; the happenings of the village squires; the sadness of the death of a neighbor; the hardships of this family or the good fortune of another. Hear about the delight of a new born; see the proud look in the eye of the owner of a new car; hear the happiness in the voice of Grandma Jones as she tells of her grandchildren coming to visit.

In the winter look out on the freshly fallen snow and see the tracks made by sleds of the happy children headed for Pontius Hill—and know they were going to have great fun.

Beautiful to read all this about a small village. Almost wished you lived here don't you? In ten years you would never believe the changes.

Most of the people are the same. Older and wiser perhaps. The robins still build their nests in the spring by the grace of God.

A few people still put out gardens. Your can sit in the backyard in the summer if your lungs are in good shape. The roads are so bad that you can't see your next door neighbor for the dust. You can almost hear the raincrow call above the barking of dogs allowed to run loose and dig up your garden and dirty up your yard.

You can almost hear your next door neighbor laugh above the hot-rodgers over on the next street if you have good ears.

The neighbors don't swim too much in their pools because they get too dirty from the dust of the street. The water cost so much you can only afford to fill it once a year.

The fall is pretty nice; the leaves still drop from the trees, thanks to God. The village squires are something to be desired. They let big builders come in. They give them so many variances that we don't need a zoning board—just Council to hurry up and make a new ordinance and tear up the old one to suit the needs of the big guys. They build the housing projects but no road just dust holes. Even Old Uncle Sam won't let the mail be delivered to the homes because of the streets.

The neighbors still have to contend with birth and death. That's God's Plan. The kids still go to Pontius's Hill - too dangerous anywhere else. Ashville died ten years ago, a new mysterious village came into being brought on by change and greed. Thank God for air-conditioning. You can close your doors and windows on a nice little village now dead do to misdeeds done by the people that run me. It's not run for the people that have been here for years but for the new comers to make money and destroy. My services will be held as soon as the dust clears enough for the Council to dig my grave.

Computer Dating Warning Issued

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State Commerce Director Dennis Shaul warned Ohioans today to use caution in dealing with computer dating services.

He said an "astounding" number of complaints had been received from people victimized by such services. He said most complaints allege that promises made by the firms are worthless and the quality and quantity of the referrals are misrepresented.

Shaul suggested that people seeking companionship consider alternatives to dating services such as volunteer organizations and church groups.

Udall Attacks

Firestone Choice

WASHINGTON (AP) — The qualifications of Leonard K. Firestone to be ambassador to Belgium were questioned Tuesday by Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz.

Udall said Firestone, a director of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., got the nomination "for one reason and one reason only—because he and his family gave a lot of money to the President's campaign."

Udall suggested the President withdraw the nomination. But if the nomination stands, he said, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee should carefully study Firestone's qualifications for the job.

News Of Interest To Women
The Circleville Herald, Wednesday March 27, 1974

MRS. MICHAEL WEILBACHER

Miss Angela Justice, Michael Weilbacher Wed

Miss Angela Justice and Mr. Michael Weilbacher were united in marriage 1:30 p.m., March 23, at Trinity Lutheran Church in Circleville. The Rev. Carl Zehner officiated the double ring ceremony before the altar decorated with vases of white gladioli and yellow and white daisies.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. Richard Justice, Youngstown, formerly of Circleville and Mrs. Doris Rosenthal, Des Plaines, Ill.

A program of music preceded the ceremony provided by Mrs. Thomas Downing, organist and Mr. Larry Pierce and Miss Cindy Weilbacher, soloists.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. For her wedding she wore a floor length gown of white bridal satin in an original design made by her step-mother, Mrs. Richard (Patti) Justice. Embroidered lace enhanced the overlay of white organza. The fitted bodice featured a square neckline and long full sleeves banded with lace. The softly pleated satin skirt flowed gracefully to a chapel train and matching lace edged the skirt down the open front and formed a double band from the waist to the end of the train. The bride's elbow length bouffant veil was held with a lace edged caplet and she carried a cascade bouquet of white daisies and yellow roses. She carried a handkerchief belonging to her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Hazel Justice.

Miss Michele Justice of Youngstown was maid of honor for her sister in a flowered chiffon over satin gown. She wore a green picture hat and carried a basket of yellow daisies.

Bridesmaids were Miss Debbie Hoalcraft, a cousin of the bride and Miss Beth Weilbacher, the bridegroom's sister, both of Columbus.

They wore yellow and pink hats respectively, flowered chiffon gowns and carried baskets of white daisies. The attendants all wore gold bracelets, gifts of the bride.

Flower girl was Miss Tricia Justice, sister of the bride. She was attired in a green organza over bridal satin gown trimmed with embroidered lace around the hemline. The little Miss carried a basket of flower petals.

Master Mark Rosenthal, the bride's brother of Des Plaines, Ill., was ring bearer.

Mr. Jay Green of Columbus performed the duties of best man. Ushers were Mr. Mel Vall, Mr. Rick Gabbard and Mr. Rick Ballard, all of Columbus. Mr. Brent Justice, brother of the bride, was acolyte. Mr. Richard Rosenthal presided at the guest book.

The bride's mother wore a light tangerine formal length gown and a white corsage. Mrs. Weilbacher was dressed in a dark tangerine floor length gown with a matching jacket trimmed in white. Her corsage

She stated the discussion dealt with the idea of getting more people to be aware of the litter in our parks and along roadsides and refrain from despoiling the beauty of our country areas. It was hoped also that parents would give more concern about the safety of their children riding bicycles and motorcycles.

Mrs. Corilla Pontious thanked the club for the gift she received while ill. She also won the chance gift.

During the program hour Mrs. Doris Edwards gave a talk on new varieties of flowers being introduced by seed companies. Several new roses known as Flora Tea roses were named, a new dianthus "Magic Charm," celosia called "Red Fox" that dries easily, a marigold "Show Boat" and a zinnia "Peter Pan."

'Grass' Blows In Sudden Wind

WASHINGTON COURT HOUSE, Ohio (AP) — A brisk March wind literally blew the cover off an Akron youth who is spending 10 days in jail for possession of marijuana.

The young hitchhiker was stopped Sunday for questioning by Fayette County Deputy David Krupla when the wind blew his hat away.

It exposed about a third of a small bag-full of the illegal substance, authorities said, on top of 18-year-old Mark E. Anderson's head.

School Enrollment Decline Reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — Elementary school enrollment declined 2.2 per cent in the current school year and will continue dropping for the remainder of the 1970s because American women have been having fewer children, the Census Bureau says.

An education official says the drop in elementary school enrollment — the third consecutive yearly decrease — may not result in lower education costs, but may bring about higher-quality education.

"At the same time enrollment is going down, pressure for higher teachers' salaries is going up," said Dr. William Tharis, executive director of the National Association of Elementary School Principals.

Agent Sees No Big Return To Child Stars

LOS ANGELES (AP) — With two youngsters nominated for Academy awards — Linda Blair and Tatum O'Neal as supporting actresses — some people are wondering if the era of the child star will return.

It won't happen, says one expert in the field of child actors. She is Pat Domigan, whose practiced eye has spotted dozens of youngsters for movies, television series and commercials.

Songstress Tanya Tucker Climbs

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Age has ended many a child star's career, but Tanya Tucker, the latest fair-haired child of country music, is unconcerned.

"Starting young can be good or bad. Like, sometimes I wonder what Donnie Osmond will be doing when he's 30. But I don't let fears like that bother me," the curly-haired blond remarked.

"I don't really have a child's voice so I don't have to worry about what I'll sound like later on.

"I know my voice will be different, but it's already changed. It did that when I had my tonsils out."

No tonsils helped her latest single "Will You Lay With Me (In a Field of Stone)" make the No. 2 spot last week in the charts. Her album, in its second week in the charts, is in the top 30.

"People like to be surprised. And they are surprised when they hear a 15-year-old singing a song like "Will You Lay With Me." And sometimes they're surprised just by my age. They don't all know I'm as young as I am."

Her roots are in country music, but her release of "Delta Dawn" in 1972 and now, "Will You Lay With Me," cross over, as the term goes, into rock airplay.

"My album has a little of everything: ballads, rock and country. I don't want to put myself into a

State Employee, Auto Use Ripped

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Michael J. Maloney, R-7 Cincinnati, today asked State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson to look into the use of state employees and state cars on alleged political trips by Gov. John J. Gilligan.

Maloney said 16 state employees under the supervision of Rupert L. Ruppert are acting as "advance men" for the governor, traveling the state making arrangements for the governor's visits.

He said they are using state-owned cars while on partisan political trips and have annual salaries totaling $216,897.

"In view of the fact the governor's office has not taken action to clear up these representations, and in view of the public money involved, I respectfully request that your office initiate the appropriate audit inquiry so that the facts will be determined," Maloney said in a letter to Ferguson.

category that's too tight, but at the same time, when you have a country fan, he's the most loyal kind you can have."

Stardom might be difficult to handle for someone as young as Tanya. But she says she's just having fun.

"I love traveling around and doing shows. It's really exciting and I get to meet a lot of other people in the business. These are people I've been a fan of for years and they always seem surprised when I ask for their autographs.

"The whole thing is still exciting. And it's getting better. We've got a band now and we're getting new equipment and maybe a new bus," she said.

"I guess I'm really not used to getting the star treatment yet," she said with a grin.

But she seems to be working into the routine of an entertainer. As she will tell you, the hours are hectic.

"You don't have time to eat right or sleep enough. But you've got to go on and do the best you can in every performance."

"I like things to be smooth. I like the people in my show to be smooth. It always works out best when everything goes right on schedule," she said.

While her father is her manager and her producer is the highly-regarded Billy Sherill, Tanya knows the burden falls to her.

"You never know from one time to the next whether you'll come up with a hit or a loser. But you've got people watching, wondering what you'll do next. And you try to follow one winner with another," she said.

That seems to be her formula for not becoming an ex-childstar.

Domigan does it every day. An associate of the Jack Wormser talent agency, she specializes in young talent, with good results.

Among her finds: Danny Bonaduce and Brian Forster on "The Partridge Family"; Kami Cotler of "The Waltons"; Clint Howard and Mitch Brown in the new "Cowboys" TV series; Kirby Furlong, who plays nephew Patrick in "Mame"; Michael

Hughes of Danny Thomas' "Make Room For Granddaddy"; Maurine McCormick of "The Brady Bunch"; Erin Murphy, the Tabatha of "Be-witched."

She is an anomaly in what she admits is the "dog-eat-dog" business of selling show business talent. A soft-spoken, middle-aged, church-going lady, she has succeeded because of her persistence and sharp eye for promising youngsters.

Married to a Los Angeles water department employee, Mrs. Domigan worked as a professional shopper until her son caused her to enter the agency business. He had appeared in church plays and began getting small roles in films and television under the name Craig Marshall.

By accompanying her son on job interviews, Mrs. Domigan began learning the talent business, and she entered it in a modest way. She specialized in children, partly to avoid the heartache of having others depend on her for a living — "children don't have to get jobs to survive; adult actors do."

Her method of finding talent is unusual: "I've discovered the best prospects in children's stores and on the street. I learned to be analytical as a professional shopper, and I can generally spot a promising child quickly."

"When I see someone I like, I say, 'Would you like to be on television?' If they are interested, I tell them to check with the Screen Actors Guild to certify our agency and then get in touch with me. It's necessary for them to know that we are legitimate, because there are so many phonies in this field."

Much has been written about how child actors have turned into unhappy adults. Mrs. Domigan discounts this.

"It may have been true in the old days, when Judy Garland was given uppers and downers," she remarked. "But now children work under rigid laws. Judy Garland had an ambitious mother, and that was the source of many of her troubles. On the other hand, Shirley Temple had intelligent parents, and she turned out all right."

Fellow Cancer Sufferer Boosts Young Boy's Spirits

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—Stephen Southerland continues to recuperate from cancer surgery while another 13-year-old who's traveled his road tells him to "trust God."

"I learned how important it is to trust God and live a day at a time," Kevin Steen of Carefree, Ariz., told Steve in two letters he sent to Children's Hospital here.

Stephen had his left leg amputated three inches below the hip last week due to bone cancer. Doctors think they stopped the disease.

The Miami, Fla. 8th-grader is the third of three sons to have a rare form of cancer.

Jeffrey Southerland died at age four of lymphatic cancer. Michael, nine, has been free of symptoms of a rare malignancy of the spinal nerve lining for the past two years.

Kevin, who sent Steve the letters, was told in 1970 that he would die within six weeks to three months of a rare lymphatic cancer.

"For reasons known only to God he came out of it," said his father, Orion, in a telephone interview. Kevin's been in remission ever since.

Steen said his son told Stephen "think of all the things you'll do when you come home." Steen said he himself told Stephen's father Raymond "we were praying for him."

In addition to chemotherapy injections, Stephen is put on a tilt board several times a day for physical therapy. The degree to which the board is tilted increases the amount of weight placed on a temporary artificial leg Stephen received during surgery.

"They've been moving me around a lot," the hospital quoted Stephen as saying Monday. "Even though I don't always appreciate what they're doing to me I know it's for the best."

Steen said his son Kevin—who was present at the splashdown of Apollo 17 because of his desire to become an astronaut—writes to cancer victims throughout the world.

Heavy Surf Subsides

HONOLULU (AP) — Heavy surf which battered the Hawaiian Islands during the weekend subsided Monday, and high surf warnings were canceled. Five persons drowned, and damages are estimated at more than $250,000 as a result of waves which reached up to 35 feet.

All five victims were drowned along Oahu's North Shore. Four women were washed off Sunset Beach and swept out to sea Saturday afternoon. Dead are Judy Ann Moore, 23, of Eugene, Ore.; and Cynthia Kollars, 19; Nancy Hammans, 26; and Garlene Galloway, 30, all of Honolulu.

William Simpson, 50, of Honolulu, drowned when his 26-foot sailboat capsized while entering the Haleiwa Marina Sunday afternoon. Two companions were rescued.

The most serious property damage occurred at the tiny fishing village of Milolii at the southern tip of Hawaii Island. The village's only store, a home, a park pavilion and part of the main road were destroyed.

Congress Gives Quick Nod To Bill For POW Survivors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has speedily voted and sent for President Nixon's approval a new military benefit intended as a mark of respect to servicemen who died while being held prisoner by the Viet Cong or North Vietnamese.

Under legislation passed Monday by the House, the Pentagon has been authorized to provide families of the POWs with round-trip transportation to funerals for the men, as well as living expenses and other allowances.

Sen. Robert J. Dole, R-Kan., introduced the bill Friday afternoon after reading a newspaper article that morning about the California widow of a Navy pilot, Capt. John Abbott, who had died in captivity.

In the newspaper story, Mrs. Cecile Abbott said she would have to pay for herself and her 12-year-old son to travel to the burial of her husband, whose body was released by the North Vietnamese two weeks ago.

Fifteen other bills were introduced in the Senate Friday and were immediately referred to committee for hearings and action — the normal procedure. Later, the chamber took up the bill Dole and four cosponsors had proposed. It passed on a voice vote.

When the House convened Monday, it received and passed the measure without objection or discussion. Meanwhile, the Pentagon announced it would implement the measure as soon as possible.

In Sacramento, Mrs. Abbott said: "I am just overwhelmed. I am completely amazed at the speed of this legislation...."

"Now I really believe all this about the power of the press," she added.

Until now, the Pentagon had no authority for such travel and funeral-connected expenses for any dead serviceman's family.

Cincinnati Raid Yields Heroin

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A raid at a downtown Cincinnati hotel Tuesday yielded one of southern Ohio's largest heroin hauls, according to authorities.

Federal authorities said 10 ounces of heroin worth $300,000 on the street was confiscated. An Ohio man and a California woman were arrested, according to Norbert A. Nadel, first assistant attorney in Cincinnati.

The two were identified as Charles Goff, 36, of Dayton, and Patricia Lynn Jackson, 27, Vallejo, Calif. The pair was charged with possession with intent to distribute heroin, Nadel said.

Not present for the picture are Jacob Carle, Joe Angles, Mary Karn, Teresa Conley, and Tom Schooley.

Westfall NHS Taps 19 New Members

By BECKI EASTERDAY

Nineteen candidates were tapped into the Westfall Chapter of the National Honor Society March 7.

The program began with a piano prelude by Cathy Cochran. Student body president Steve Cochran performed two solos, "Born Free", and "The Impossible Dream" during the program.

Present members conducted the service. Susan Hillman gave the invocation and Rick Metzger led the audience in the Pledge of Allegiance. Dave Shannon read the history of the Society.

Rae Fenstermaker represented the Spirit of the Torch and requirement speeches for membership were recited by Dianna Strittmatter, character; Darlene Barney, scholarship; Debbie Hulse, leadership; and Carol Clem, service.

Becki Easterday told the method of selecting new members. Not more than 10 per cent of the junior class and 15 per cent of the senior class may be nominated for this high honor of achievement.

All nominees must have a grade average of 3.25 or higher and pledge to uphold the high standards set by the National Honor Society.

The old members each lit a candle from the torch and went into the student body to perform the tapping ceremony.

New members are: juniors: Robert Stone, Tom Schooley, Doug Williams, Bunny Stevens, Jane Schein, Teresa Conley, Mary Musselman, Terry Monett, Lynn Stillings, Mary Karn, Karen Marshall, and Cathy Welsh.

Seniors are Bill Jacobs, Joe Angles, Tim Brigner, Mickey Horn, Loretta Massie, Jerri Furniss, Jacob Carle.

Each initiate was then escorted to a seat on the stage and Rick Metzger repeated the National Honor Society Pledge which the new members recited in unison. Susan Hillman concluded the program with the benediction.

A tea was held in the home economics department for NHS members, parents and faculty members. Mrs. William Easterday chaired the reception and several mothers of the 1973 members assisted with the serving. A large blue lighted candle encircled with yellow roses served as the centerpiece signifying the NHS colors.

Each new member received a membership card, gold NHS pin or tie tac and a peel off symbol of the society. The county banquet was held March 12 in the McDowell Exchange School. After dinner, the new members of the three county high schools received their NHS certificate and the new county officers were announced.

The Westfall Chapter would like to thank advisor, Mr. Thomas Greer for his helpful suggestions and infinite patience in preparing the ceremony. It was truly a memorable occasion for all those involved.

Nine Receive Superior Ratings At Science Fair

By LYNN HUSTON

Westfall did well at the District Science Fair March 9 in Columbus. Nine of twenty-eight projects entered received a superior rating. These students are: Chuck Bower, Emily Caldwell, Mary Jo Carle, Mickey Horn, April Neal, Phil Scott, Bunny Stevens, Vickie Wilkey and Judy Wolford.

Eight projects were given excellent ratings, ten receiving a rating of good and one satisfactory.

Several students were not judged individually due to their conflicting participation in the solo and ensemble contest. Therefore, their projects were judged on appearance alone and did not receive high ratings.

The rotating trophy for most superiors entered from one school went to Westerville High School. Westfall students will be working hard to regain the coveted trophy next year.

Juniors To Present Class Play March 29

By VANESSA LONG

The WHS Junior Class Play this year is "Finders Creepers" written by Donald Payton to be performed with special permission of the Heuar Publishing Company, Cedar Rapids, Iowa. It will be shown 7:30 p.m. March 29, in the Westfall High School Auditorium.

The play is a well-paced mystery comedy that stars Rex Hix as Hercules Nelson and Doug Garrison as Wilbur Maxwell. Hercules and his friend Wilbur plan to spend a weekend with Herc's aunt and uncle. They arrive only to find that Uncle Bob has taken a new job and to their horror they find out he's a mortician.

To top that, he has a "Guest" named Jason Quigley who "ran out of gas." His funeral is to be Monday. The boys decided to go home pronto until Wilbur meets Herc's cousin Celeste and boom—he decides to stay. Well, things start happening then! First, Mr. Quigley,

"the guest" walks around, reads the paper, and climbs into Hercules' bed. His gallivanting naturally terrifies the boys.

But they haven't seen anything yet. Mr. Quigley isn't really dead. Someone tried to do away with him while he was asleep, so he evolved a plan: He'd make his family think he was dead, then show up at his own funeral and trap the guilty. Herc is still planning to leave until he sees Nina, the "deceased" granddaughter, and then he decides to stay. His plan would have succeeded if Wilbur and Hercules decided to solve the case and soon matters go from bad to worse!

Hercules tips off Nina that her grandpop is alive, she tips off the family and everything's messed. Uncle Bob is implicated and ends up in jail. The boys confront the culprit and end the play with one of the wildest finishes ever.

So if you like comedies, be sure and see this one! It's a dilly! Remember 7:30 p.m. Friday. See you there!

Students Take Trip To Battelle

By VANESSA LONG

Twenty-two members of the advanced math, chemistry, physics and Algebra II classes traveled March 13 to Battelle Institute in Columbus. Mr. Wright and Mr. Greer acted as chaperones as the group took a guided tour of the institute.

Comments concerning the trip included:

T. Brigner — "I learned what Battelle was and I really enjoyed the tour."

Mr. Greer — "Probably the tour was aimed at specific research interests rather than general high school students; I would like to have selected the areas of visitation."

T. Monett — "It was fun. But we didn't see everything and I would have liked to have seen more."

H. Canter — "It was O.K. but I was disappointed on what they showed us."

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

How Names Change

DEAR ABBY: It will not surprise you to learn that my attention has been called to your column in which you answer a correspondent who quotes me at length. (It deals with the fact that man is the only animal that blushes or needs to.)

Did you notice the amusing fact that I was given a new name? The alleged author was called "David Elton Fineblood."

Faithfully,
DAVIDELTON TRUEBLOOD
Earlham College,
Richmond, Ind.

DEAR MR. TRUE (NOT FINE) BLOOD: The scholar Arthur Prince who sent me your brilliant quotation did not find it very amusing, and I don't blame him. He had your name right, and so did I. How your blood became "fine" from "true" baffles me. The transformation no doubt occurred in the composing room causing my own blood (which is "A positive") to boil briefly when I saw the error. My apologies to both you and Arthur Prince.

DEAR ABBY: Thanks to you, we have made provisions for leaving our eyes, kidneys, and pituitary glands. But what can be done about recovering the thousands of dollars in gold invested in crowns, bridges, inlays, etc.? At today's gold prices, it seems too wasteful to be buried or cremated with all that gold in our mouths.

LOADED IN THOUSAND OAKS
DEAR LOADED: Eyes, kidneys and pituitary glands are infinite value to the recipients, but few people have sufficient gold in their mouths to justify leaving it to their heirs.

DEAR ABBY: Concerning your letter from the 16-year-old girl who made a pledge to save herself for marriage. You replied, "Lovely."

I'm a 16-year-old girl, too, and I'd like to know what is so lovely about saving yourself for marriage. A guy is expected to sow a few wild oats and have some experience before marriage. This is somewhat of an accepted thing in society, but what about the girl he gets this experience from? She is considered a "loose" girl, looked down upon. What about the nice girls?

Whether adults like to admit it or not, with puberty comes also a developing sex drive in girls, too. This is a normal biological function. Why must we suffer the frustration of

OSU Presents Variety Of Spring Shows

A wide variety of shows are on tap for spring performances at Ohio State University. Performances are in conjunction with the College of the Arts and some are free to the public.

Those seeking humor and nostalgia in addition to musical profundity will be rewarded by the "Hindemith in 1922" concert slated by the Ohio State School of Music on the "Music of Paul Hindemith Series" Thursday, March 28 at 8 p.m. in Hughes Auditorium.

The Twenties were noted for madcap exploits. Hindemith's "1922, Suite for Piano" illustrates the trend with driving rhythm, surprising dynamics and sharp musical satire. "Shimmy" and "Ragtime" are among its titled sections.

Maurice Casey and the Ohio State Symphonic Choir present their free spring concert in Mershon Auditorium Sunday, March 31 at 3 p.m. A brilliant program of music on religious themes will be accompanied by an ensemble of strings, flutes and trumpets.

Milton Stevens, conductor and trombonist on the OSU School of Music faculty in Columbus, introduces the new OSU Trombone Ensemble in its full debut concert in Hughes Auditorium Sunday, March 31 at 8 p.m. Admission is free and the public is invited. Hughes Auditorium is in the School of Music building just one block west of Mershon Auditorium on N. College Road.

The brilliantly talented young classical guitarist, Christopher Parkening, appears as the last event of the "Guitar Series" at 8 p.m. on April 2.

N. F. Simpson, a playwright whose status has grown in recent years, is one of many modern dramatists who relish the non sequitur.

His comic nonsense play, "One Way Pendulum," will be presented by the Ohio State University Theatre April 2-6 in the Stadium II Theatre at Drake Center, 1849 Cannon Drive, on the Columbus campus.

Maestro Evan Whallon and the Columbus Symphony Orchestra combine forces with the Ohio State College of the Arts to present two masterpieces on the final concert of the Great Artist Series in Mershon Auditorium April 5 at 8 p.m.

Whallon will lead distinguished soloists and the combined OSU choruses of the School of Music in Beethoven's glorious affirmation of mankind's brotherhood, the Ninth Symphony, and Dvorak's joyful "Te Deum Laudamus."

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio capital city newsmen held their annual roast Tuesday night. The main course was politicians.

It was the Ohio Press Club's 1974 Gridiron Show, where the state's top politicians pay money to hear and see themselves insulted.

The 1974 show followed the theme, "Rivals and Revivals, or, Praise the Lord and Pass the Politicians." And the old revival preacher who ran the annual satire did so on a bi-partisan basis, nailing Democrats and Republicans, from the President down.

"Brothers and sisters, I am no different than you," the preacher intoned. "I once wandered aimlessly, my campaign filled with sin."

"I could launder my campaign expenses, but I couldn't cleanse my soul...Come on brothers and sisters, let me hear you testify."

Who should step forward but an actor playing Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe, proclaiming: "I'm a newborn politician."

"How are you reborn, Brother Saxbe?" the preacher asked.

"Before I saw the light I was just a senator from Ohio," Saxbe testified. "I didn't see all the good things our President was doing. I was cursed by Devil Politics. And then I saw the light."

Then the "old" Saxbe appeared to contrast with the new Saxbe.

"It's like the guy playing piano downstairs in the house of ill repute who says he doesn't know what's going on upstairs," said the "old" Saxbe.

"I think I have a pretty good feel for those things and I believe him," the "new" Saxbe said.

To the tune of "Won't you come home Bill Bailey," the newsmen responded in chorus:

"Won't you revert Bill Saxbe; To your old ways?; You used to give them hell."

"You've changed the tune you're singing; You've lost your spunk; You're ringing Nixon's bell."

"But now you've gone tame; On laying the blame; Bill Saxbe why aren't you the same?"

On the Democratic side, Gov. John J. Gilligan was roasted for, among other things, his vacations in Michigan.

"Brothers and sisters, we know we all have a destiny," the preacher preached. "And our destiny is often our destination. We need a destination so that we can vacation."

"For it is written in the Columbus Dispatch...Then he loaded his wife and his family and his household goods and all that he could carry...and put it all in his DC3...and he did exodus that land to flee to Michigan."

"And he landed in a place called Credibility Gap."

President Nixon was gigged in a quick four-liner:

"Everybody was worrying about the German influence in the Nixon administration, what with Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Kissinger," said one man. "But I wasn't worried 'til they started using Mazda engines on their tape recorders."

"Mazda engines?" asked the straight man.

"Sure," was the reply. "Everyone knows a Mazda goes 'Hummmmmmm.'"

State Auditor Joseph Ferguson was one of three Ohio politicians scalded for trying to pass on their offices to their sons. Ferguson's son, Deputy State Auditor Thomas Ferguson, is a candidate to succeed his father in 1974.

"Climb upon my name, Tommy Boy," he sang. "Grab a little fame, Tommy Boy."

"You're the next in line; Though I'm still in my prime; Little pal of mine, Tommy Boy."

The annual show closed with a chorus to the tune, "When the Saints Go Marching In":

"Oh when those votes start coming in; The campaign's died down to a din; All candidates will want to be there; When those votes start coming in."

"Oh when those polls close down at least; And all the ballots have been cast; Only the voters will be losers; When those polls close down at last."

Poor Richard's Plan

By JIM BISHOP

There is a feeling among people that, until Watergate, President Richard Nixon was a folk hero in America. It isn't so. From the day, in 1946, when he decided to run for Congress in California against the veteran Jerry Voorhis, his merciless game plans have engendered fear among Republicans as well as Democrats.

Nixon's mentor was Mr. Murray Chotiner, California lawyer and public-relations expert. It was Chotiner who taught the young Navy Lieutenant-Commander the value of the "half-truth." Basically, the strategy remained constant:

Maintain an aura of honesty; smear your opponent with innuendo and exaggerated guilt; cry piteously that your enemies are smearing you. In the first campaign, Nixon charged the conservative Voorhis with being a radical.

Nixon claimed that the Congressman was backed by the Political Action Committee. "They get their political orders from Moscow." In sum, the secretive, slimy Krenlin wanted to elect Jerry Voorhis over the poor, guileless Richard Nixon.

It worked then. And, except for the beating by Governor Pat Brown in 1962 and the narrowing victory of John F. Kennedy in 1960, it has remained viable.

Senator Sheridan Downey vacated his seat in 1950. The G.O.P. nominated Nixon. The Democrats put up Helen Gahagan Douglas. The Communist issue was still paramount because, where the Justice Department had failed to expose Alger Hiss as a Soviet spy, Nixon successfully prosecuted him on a prejudice charge.

A "pink sheet" was circulated in California, charging that Mrs.

Douglas, in many cases, voted with Vito Marcantonio, a Communist-leaning New York Congressman. This was true in legislation which had nothing to do with Communism. The sheet did not mention that Nixon and Marcantonio often voted together.

Nixon won. A feeling pervaded Washington that, somehow, it was "un-American" to run against Poor Richard. He was on his way up. Dwight Eisenhower was entreated to consider Nixon as his Vice Presidential running mate.

Someone exposed Nixon as accepting $18,000-a-year from California businessmen. Ike wavered. Murray Chotiner taught Nixon how to "tough it out" by getting on television and choking back the tears. Nixon had been caught, but he told of his life struggle, his children, Pat's good Republican cloth coat, and the gift of a little doggie named Checkers.

Eisenhower was so affected by the evasions that he shouted, "That's my boy!" However, after Ike had worked with Nixon a while, a reporter at a press conference asked the President what Nixon was doing to help the Administration.

"Give me a week," he growled, "and I'll think of something."

America began to hear of a "New Nixon." Then there was the "New New Nixon." Paul Hoffman, in his book, "The New Nixon," observed: "He knows his drawbacks and has tried to correct or at least compensate for them."

"Yet for all his efforts to create the image of a 'New Nixon' he has been unable to erase fully the memory of 'Tricky Dick,' the masterful manipulator, the man you wouldn't buy a used car from."

When Nixon ran for President, a Nelson Rockefeller adviser seemed shocked. "Richard Nixon," he said, "is the most dangerous of all men to have running as President." The adviser was Henry Kissinger.

In 1960, newspaper correspondents on Nixon's plane staged a private poll and voted for Kennedy. In 1962, Merle Miller, author of "Plain Speaking," asked Harry Truman his opinion of Nixon:

"Now let's not get into that... He not only doesn't give a damn about the people; he doesn't know how to tell the truth. I don't think the s.o.b. knows the difference between telling the truth and lying."

Nixon was a gut fighter and perhaps a below-the-gut-fighter. In early 1972, before Watergate, James M. Perry, author of "Us and Them," sent a questionnaire to political writers. Among the kindest descriptions of President Nixon were these:

"A square, works hard, rounded political skills." "Astute, able, experienced." They were the few. The many wrote:

"Mean, dark impulses." "Slippery." "Contemptuous of people's intelligence." "Basically a bad man." "Tricky." "Deceptive, lies, plays games."

Assuming that any of these opinions are valid, how is it that we the people did not hear about them until after Watergate? The President likes the appellation "Poor Rich," but it's a contradiction in terms...

Suburb Eyes Secession From Cincy

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A group of disgruntled citizens from suburban Mt. Washington are investigating the possibility of seceding from Cincinnati.

"It's not a joke up here," said Mrs. Elmer Meyer, secretary of the Mt. Washington Civic Club. She said the community is tired of promises and is angry over the city's failure to improve traffic congestion on Beechmont Avenue.

Robert Vetter, president of the group, said he has been asked to obtain information on secession from the Hamilton County commissioners.

He said numerous residents "have wearied of awaiting action by the City of Cincinnati on our many problems here."

Mt. Washington was annexed to Cincinnati in 1911 and marked its 100th anniversary in 1967.

Another suburb, Avondale, sought secession in 1968 and its representatives were told there was no law to permit such action.

Vote To Probe GM Practices

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Civil Rights Commission voted Tuesday to investigate employment practices by the General Motors Corp. Fisher Body Division in Columbus and the Kroger Co. in Dayton.

The commission said it was taking the action after staff surveys indicated possible discrimination against minorities and women in such areas as hiring and promotion.

Rail Commuters Hit By Streaking

NEW YORK (AP) — The nickname for a Long Island Rail Road commuter is "Dashing Dan" but the riders on the 8:01 out of Huntington were treated to a streaking "Dashing Danielle."

The naked young woman flashed down the aisle of the Manhattan bound train Monday then ran out the rear door where a man waited for her with a coat and automobile.

It was the first time the railroad reported a delay due to streaking.

Glue Provides School Holiday

WESTPALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — More than 1,900 Forest Hill High School students got an extra day of spring vacation after someone filled the school's locks with rock-hard epoxy glue.

Classes were canceled Monday while maintenance men tried to find a way to open the school's doors and gates. Blowtorches finally unglued the locks. A school spokesman said the locks will have to be replaced.

Illinois Governor Takes Spin In Auto With Coal-Gasoline

CHICAGO (AP) — Illinois Gov. Daniel Walker took a car for a spin in downtown Chicago using gasoline refined from coal. He said the fuel process is a partial answer to the energy crisis.

"No stall, no sputter, no ping," Walker said after the drive with the experimental fuel Monday.

"If we are to solve the energy problem, working toward a self-sufficient nation; if we are to protect our air, keeping it safe, then we will have to develop the technology and build plants to convert coal to oil and natural gas and gasoline," he said.

The gasoline Walker used cost $266 a gallon to produce and his brief spin in heavy traffic used about $66 worth.

It was 92 octane—the equivalent of premium gasoline.

The demonstration kicked off a conference on developing Illinois' estimated 148 billion tons of unmined coal.

The governor said he learned recently that gasoline could be derived from coal, so he ordered 15 gallons for demonstrations.

Oil officials estimated that it would take 7 to 10 years to build a refinery in Illinois that would produce 100,000 barrels of fuel a day from coal. They said a potential 120 gallons of gasoline could be refined from one ton of coal.

They estimated the cost of setting up such a project would be about $500 million, with a gallon of coal-gasoline selling for about 70 cents.

"That might look pretty cheap 10 years from now," said Ted Tom of the Amoco Oil Co. laboratory in Whiting, Ind.

Experimental processes on a very limited scale were why Walker's 15 gallons of gasoline cost about $4,000 to produce.

The southern Illinois coal was processed into crude oil at Hydrocarbon Research at Trenton, N.J. The gasoline was refined at Amoco's Whiting lab with small scale processing equipment.

Walker said he believes it was the first time a passenger car has been run in the United States on gasoline derived from coal.

Storms Hit Northwest, Gulf States

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thunderstorms accompanied by coastal gale warnings drenched the nation's Northwest today, while heavy rains and small hail pelted the central Gulf coast states.

A Pacific cold front spread rain from central California and western Nevada to the Canadian border.

Another front along the Gulf triggered thunderstorms from eastern Texas into Alabama, and severe thunderstorm warnings were issued at many points.

Hail the size of marbles struck Mobile, Ala., and New Orleans received more than 4 inches of rain during 24 hours.

In addition, heavy fog blanketed much of the Gulf coast, while drizzle spread to the Atlantic coast of Georgia.

Temperatures remained cold in the Northeast, and scattered snow flurried in parts of New England, New York and the upper Great Lakes.

Elsewhere, fair skies and milder weather were common.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 1 at Pellston, Mich., to 76 at Key West, Fla.

Capitol Art Show Draws Notables

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Irish ambassador, eight congressmen and a senator came to an art show in the Capitol this week to pay homage to Irish seascapes painter Val McEann.

It was the latest in a series of three-month exhibitions begun two years ago after Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio took over chairmanship of the House Administration Committee.

Hays cleared out the blackandwhite photographs of former committee chairmen and replaced them with loaned paintings by contemporary artists.

He and the Capitol architect envision not only more revolving shows — they are booked through 1976 — but also a bicentennial exhibition.

The McGann opening drew more celebrities than any other.

The Irish ambassador, John Gerald Molloy, came because McGann is the first Irishman honored with a Capitol showing. Maine Rep. William Hathaway was there because McGann now lives and paints in Ogunquit, Maine.

Majority Leader Thomas "Tip" O'Neill and Reps. James Burke and Joe Moakley, all Massachusetts Democrats, attended partly because McGann is married to Anna Houton, a member of a Boston family active in Democratic politics.

This also drew Sen. George McGovern, because some of the Houtons had worked in his presidential campaign.

Also there was Rep. Bob Mathias, R-Calif. He and McGann are both former decathlon champions.

"I met him in Dublin when he came there to run on his way to the 1948 Olympic games in London," McGann said. "He was my hero. I never saw him again until now."

McGann started painting when he was 12, growing up in County Galway in Ireland, but he became known as an athlete, not a painter, in his native land.

He held the Irish pole vault record for six years and continued in decathlon events between the ages of 19 and 30.

When he was 35, he left his office job and took up painting fulltime. He irritated local gallery owners by painting small Irish scenes and pricing them cheaply, for the tourists.

One tourist returned repeatedly, year after year, and encouraged McGann to paint fulltime. She was Katherine Howard, who traveled down from Waltham, Mass., for the Capitol showing.

McGann married Anna Houton four years ago, after meeting her in Ireland, and immigrated to the United States. In Ogunquit, he keeps himself in shape by braving the breakers in a kayak the year round.

McGann brought 62 paintings to the Capitol showing, priced between $80 and $1,000.

Court Ruling Effect Eyed On Elections

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Secretary of State Ted Brown says he doesn't think a new U.S. Supreme Court ruling will cripple Ohio's election procedure.

The court ruling said states can't use filing fees as a device to keep poor candidates off the ballots. Ohio requires filing fees of up to $50.

"The filing fee is just a good faith gesture, a small per cent of what it takes to hold elections," Brown said Tuesday. "But it keeps Rudolph the Red Nosed Reindeer and a lot of others off the ballot."

The Supreme Court decision struck down a California filing requirement. The court said a "compelling need" must be shown for requiring a filing fee.

"I'm sure the court didn't just issue a blanket ruling," Brown said of the decision. "I'm sure Ohio can work out some way to keep the balloting process practical and still satisfy the courts."

He said, for example, that an indigent candidate may be required to file a statement of his financial status if he wanted to run without paying the fee.

Under current law, candidates for Congress, the governor's office or any other state position must file a fee of $50.

Candidates for county office pay a fee amounting to one-half of one per cent of the first year's salary to a maximum of $50.

"Even a write-in candidate has to file that $50 to get his votes counted," Brown said. "It would be too impractical otherwise to be keeping a tally of all the names that might be written in."

He said a full reading of the court's opinion is necessary before state officials can decide what action to take.

Foreman Stops Norton

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Call him the "Lightning Destroyer"—big George Foreman is a heavyweight champion who works as if he left the car running outside.

He offers a bleak future for his next and most hated foe, Muhammad Ali, whom he's supposed to meet in September in Africa.

"I think I can whip Ali in two rounds," the 6-foot-3, 224½-pound one-time juvenile delinquent said after crushing challenger Ken Norton into a slab of helpless beef in five minutes

Tuesday night before 9,000 at the Poldiro.

It was quick and merciful.

The awesome-looking Foreman, with arms like wagon tongues and shoulders like a blacksmith, sent Norton reeling into the ropes twice for mandatory eight counts in the second round and crashed him to canvas with a thunderclap left hand.

Norton wobbled to his feet at the count of eight but his trainer, Bill Slayton, leaped into the ring and the controversial referee, Jimmy Rondeau of Seattle, stopped the slaughter at 2 minutes flat of the second round.

"I would have stopped it, anyway," Rondeau said afterward. "Norton was in no condition to go on."

Now in three heavyweight title fights in the space of 14 months, Foreman has literally shredded three opponents in the combined time of 11 minutes and 43 seconds.

He floored Joe Frazier six times in Kingston, Jamaica, and won the heavyweight title in 4 minutes, 43 seconds. On Aug. 31 in Tokyo he stopped Joe "King" Roman in two minutes flat. Norton lasted five.

It is a series of triumphs reminiscent of the blinking eye triumphs of the great Joe Louis, the Brown Bomber, in the period before World War II.

"Joe had a lot to do with my winning so easily tonight," Foreman said in the dressing room. "When he was introduced in the ring, he reached over and whispered in my ear, 'Remember you're the champ—stay cool.' That's what I did."

Muhammad Ali, whose very appearance often sends fight fans into a screaming frenzy, was at ringside as closed circuit TV commentator, and he couldn't have been comforted by what befell his big brown eyes.

Earlier, in picking Norton, Ali had said Foreman was little more than an awkward amateur. "He's slow and sluggish and can't move—he's an easy target for a pro," Ali said, "but I still think I can beat him. He hits harder than I do, but I am a better boxer. I'll dance and sting him to death."

Ali got an echo from his trainer, the veteran Angelo Dundee of Miami, Fla.

"I hope to God Foreman fights us like he did Norton," said Dundee. "Ali will move, stick him and pick him to pieces with straight punches. Ali will be the new champion."

CHS Tigers Open Baseball Season At Washington C. H.

Circleville High School's baseball team will open the season today under the direction of new head coach John Lawhorn when the Tigers travel to Washington C. H. to take on the Blue Lions in a South Central Ohio League contest set for 4:30 p.m.

Lawhorn has taken over the Tiger reins from Dannie Fouts who resigned as head coach at the conclusion of the 1973 season.

It appears that it will be a rebuilding season for the Tigers with only six lettermen returning from last year's team.

A total of 26 candidates are making their bid for a berth on the squad. They have been hard at work and some promising prospects are on tap to make the Tiger outlook a little sunnier. It will be a case of the seasoned veterans carrying the pace until the new candidates can get a little experience under their belts.

Lettermen returning to form the nucleus of this year's edition of the Tigers are: Rock Davis, senior, who will move from his third base position into 1B-OF; Mike Speakman, senior, OF-P; Jeff See, senior, C-OF; Mark Scherer, senior, 2B-SS; Perry Hoskins, junior, SS-P; and Phil Roll, junior, P-3B-1B.

Cougars Top Edmonton In WHA Tilt

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Its beginning to look as if the World Hockey Association brass is showing a tape replay of last season's hectic fight for the playoffs in the East Division.

The fifth-place Chicago Cougars downed the Edmonton Oilers 4-2 Tuesday night, raising their point total for the season to 77 and bringing them within one point of the second place Quebec Nordiques — not to mention the third-place Toronto Toros and fourth-place Cleveland Crusaders.

In the National Hockey League, the Minnesota North Stars kept their dimming playoff hopes alive with a 5-1 victory over the Los Angeles Kings and the Montreal Canadiens edged the Vancouver Canucks 4-3.

Last year in the WHA, the then Ottawa Nationals — now the Toros — put on a tremendous spurt in the closing weeks to pass the Quebec Nordiques and then New York Raiders and make the playoffs.

Now the same thing is happening with the Cougars. Only the Jersey Knights have been eliminated from the playoffs.

The Cougars and Crusaders have 77 points with four games left to play — the same as Quebec and Toronto, who are tied with identical records and 78 points.

Maryland was fourth with 591 points and Notre Dame finished fifth with 508. Those top five teams retained the same position in the final poll that they had held a week earlier in the midst of the NCAA, National Invitation and Collegiate Commissioner's Tournaments.

Michigan, Kansas and Providence, all knocked off in the NCAA playoff, held the next three spots. Indiana, which won the Commissioner's tourney, used that victory to move up two notches from a tie for 11th place last week to No. 9. Long Beach State completed the Top 10 teams.

Purdue, which captured the NIT, rode that victory to 11th place in the final poll, a healthy jump from last week's tie for 18th place. The Boilermakers just topped No. 12 North Carolina in one of the poll's tightest battles. The Tar heels had been 10th a week ago.

Utah was No. 15 behind Vanderbilt and Alabama.

Pittsburgh finished 16th and Southern California was No. 17. The last three slots were held down by Oral Roberts, South Carolina and Dayton in that order.

The Top Twenty, with first-place votes in parentheses, season records and total points. Points tabulated on basis of 20-18-16-14-12-10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1.

Power Crisis Increases Thefts

LONDON (AP) — Thousands of shoplifters are enjoying a bonanza during the British power crisis, with lighting in all stores dimmed. Police chiefs estimate most store owners suffered record losses from shoplifting over the Christmas period.

Views On Television

NEW YORK (AP) — A key recommendation in a recent White House report on cable television says there should be "no restrictions" on ownership of cable-TV systems by newspapers, magazines or broadcasters. Question: Isn't that at odds with efforts by the Justice Department's antitrust division to have the Federal Communications Commission break up four newspaper-broadcast combinations in St. Louis, Des Moines and Minneapolis? "Only superficially," answers Dr. Clay Whitehead, head of the White House Office of Telecommunications Policy and chairman of a Cabinet committee which put together the 122-page cable-TV report. "You have to back off and ask why Justice and a lot of other people are upset by crossownership of the media," he said, referring to cases in which print media own broadcast stations and vice versa. "The answer lies in the fact that our media has become far more concentrated economically. Fewer companies own the major media. "So the result is when a TV station, let's say, buys a newspaper or vice versa, the public in essence is deprived of one independent outlet of expression." But Whitehead, commenting during a recent interview at his Washington office, insisted his group's "no restrictions" proposal for cable-TV ownership wouldn't create a new form of media monopoly. It even has the approval of the Justice Department, he said. This, he added, is because it only would let the owner of a cable-TV system control and program for "one or two of his own channels" and make him lease the other channels to outsiders on a competitive basis. "Now, if we allow the cable operator to control all his channels," he said, "not only would he have a tremendous monopoly — you've got to remember we're talking 30 to 50 channels — you'd have the same problem of outlets of expression being owned by one company." By permitting the owner of a cable-TV system the use of only one or two of the system's channels, "all of a sudden it doesn't matter much who owns the cable," Whitehead said.

Wolves Are Endangered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Men have placed bounties on wolf pelts for more than 2,500 years. The animals have been speared, clubbed, shot, trapped, poisoned and machine-gunned from airplanes. They have been so decimated that today wolves are listed as an endangered species. The only areas in North America where wolves remain in appreciable numbers are Alaska and parts of Canada. Naturalists have been gaining public support for their efforts to protect these packs.

USDA Tax Snooping Order Model For Other Agencies

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's order giving the Agriculture Department access to tax files on farmers was a model for snooping into tax returns throughout the government, according to a congressional committee.

The order, issued in January 1973, was revoked last week. It permitted the department to inspect more than three million federal income tax returns of farmers to compile mailing lists for statistical surveys.

According to the House foreign operations and government information subcommittee, which held hearings last summer on the plan, "the first executive order had been drawn up as a model for future executive orders opening tax returns for similar statistical uses by other federal agencies."

The panel said in its report that the Justice Department, confirming this, wrote: "The original order was prepared by the Department of the Treasury in language designed to serve as a prototype for future tax return inspection orders."

Rep. Bill Alexander, D-Ark., a member of the parent Committee on Government Operations, asked rhetorically in a separate report whether the first order would allow the Department of Commerce to inspect businessmen's tax returns.

"Is this evidence of a master plan of the federal government to oversee the private affairs of every group of citizens?" he asked. "We were shocked at what we eventually uncovered. A committee hearing confirmed our worst fears."

"I for one am not going to stand idly by while the first waves from 1984 wash over me," he said.

The 1973 order was announced in a notice in the Federal Register but was not publicized by the Agriculture Department. Critics on Capitol Hill voiced fears that the government would not restrict itself to information for statistical surveys.

Dr. Don Paarlberg, the Agriculture Department's director of economics, told the committee that the IRS and his department were ready to design safeguards to prevent the abuse of the information.

But one observer said, "you wonder why this wasn't publicized from the beginning, especially if it was for the glorious purpose they said it was for."

Although the order was revoked last week, Rep. Abraham Kazen Jr., D-Tex., introduced a bill Monday amending the Internal Revenue Code to restrict the authority for inspection of tax returns and the disclosure of information in the returns.

Politicians Shun Gun Control

By The Associated Press

Candidates for state and federal office in Ohio are treading softly on the issue of gun controls, a poll of office-seekers showed Tuesday.

Most indicated they hoped the courts would break ground on the ticklish issue that separates sportsmen and pro-gun enthusiasts on the one hand, and law enforcement and antigun people on the other.

Figuring in any stand on weapons control is a pro-gun lobby numbering 50,000 or more in Ohio, by National Rifle Association statistics.

And, political observers agree, gun control is a gut-level issue among blue-collar voters whose studies have shown are more likely to keep weapons for protection against crime.

Responses were overwhelmingly in opposition to weapons control from a cross-section of candidates for Ohio House and Senate.

U.S. Senate candidates from Ohio, however, indicated a more favorable attitude to some forms of registration of weapons or bans on handgun sales.

U.S. Senate candidates on the Democratic ticket, Sen. Howard Metzenbaum and former astronaut John Glenn, said they both favor bans on the manufacture, sale or importation of so-called "Saturday night specials." This label applies to cheap, easily accessible handguns that have no patently, provable, sporting purpose.

Neither would restrict sale of rifles, collector's items, or guns used for hunting or target shooting.

Metzenbaum, however, said he favors registration of handguns, while Glenn says he does not, claiming it is "unworkable."

Cleveland Mayor Ralph Perk, a Republican candidate for U.S. Senate, has come out strongly in favor of federal or state weapons controls, but agrees that local registration of handguns might not be efficient.

Both Glenn and Metzenbaum said they supported closing a loophole in a recently-passed Congressional bill that would allow parts, tools and dyes for cheap handguns to be imported into the United States for assembly.

On the state level, the House Rules committee is studying a proposal that would outlaw the sale of "Saturday night specials," defined as handguns that melt or deform at a temperature of 800 degrees fahrenheit.

The lawmakers have rejected an outright ban of pistol sales.

A check of responses to questionnaires to candidates from The Associated Press showed most of the

would-be candidates reflected the views of their opponents in office: Some control should be exercised to keep weapons from criminals, but honest citizens should be free to keep and bear arms if they wish.
